THE PROGRESS OF THE KINGDOM

*The Possibility of a Native Bishop
for the Church in Japan*

EARLY in May the Nippon Sei Kokwai, or Holy Catholic Church in Japan, in which the missions of the American Church and the Church of England are combined, held its triennial synod in Tokyo. It was one of the most important gatherings in the history of the Japanese Church. The matter of greatest interest at this synod, as was the case with the one meeting in 1902, was the discussion of plans for the establishment of the Japanese episcopate. It is thought probable that within the next ten years the Japanese Church will ask for the consecration of a native bishop and will guarantee his support. This would not mean the withdrawal of American or English bishops and missionaries. The plan, as it has been roughly outlined, would be to set apart a fairly small and compact district with at least ten self-supporting congregations, as the jurisdiction of the native bishop. It is probable that his see city would be either Tokyo, Kyoto, or Osaka. There are now American bishops resident in the first two of these cities. One of them would retire from the district assigned to the Japanese bishop and would continue to lead the forward movement of the Church in parts of the Empire to which much attention has not been given, because of the small staff and the pressure of work at the larger centres. In anticipation of the time when the Japanese Church will have a native bishop, it has long been the required custom to give the offerings at the time of the visitation of the bishops for confirmation to the "Japanese Episcopate Endowment Fund."

*Enlargement
at St. Luke's Hospital, Tokyo*

DURING his visit to this country last winter, Dr. Rudolf B. Teusler, our missionary physician in charge of St. Luke's Hospital, Tokyo, secured about $12,000 of the $24,000 needed to purchase land and erect new buildings in order that the institution may more nearly meet the increased demands made upon it. Dr. Teusler had every reason to expect that he would be able, as the representative of the Board of Missions, to secure the full amount needed. The sudden death of a physician in Tokyo who, while not a missionary, had been associated with Dr. Teusler in the work of the hospital, and had been giving it general oversight during his absence, necessitated his hurried return. Since reaching Japan Dr. Teusler has been enlarging and improving the present building so far as the funds at his disposal will permit. The capacity of two of the old wards has been doubled and work will soon be begun on another building. Twelve of the new beds have been offered to the Japanese Society for the Relief of Soldiers' Families, and have been gratefully accepted in an appreciative letter from Princess Mori, the president. Several patients sent through the society are now being cared for without remuneration. It is not only among Japanese that St. Luke's renders its service. It is generally recognized as the only hospital in Japan suitable for the care of foreigners. Some of its patients come from the commercial and diplomatic circles of the foreign community, and not only in Japan, but in other eastern countries. In view of the variety of its service and the importance of having such an institution fully equipped, it is imperatively necessary that the $12 000 needed to complete the enlargement should be given without delay, even though Dr. Teusler is no longer here to plead the cause in person.

An Important Experiment in Georgia

THE last annual council of the Diocese of Georgia took an important step in consenting to the organization of a separate council of Negro Churchmen for the transaction of all business relating to the Church's work among their own people. The desire for this action, it should be remembered, did not originate with the white Churchmen. They gave a unanimous consent to a step proposed by the Negro clergy and laity, which will, it is believed, be of great benefit to the Church in the diocese and will tend especially to strengthen and extend the Church's efforts among the Negroes. The organization of such a separate council is not entirely experimental. The plan has been in operation in Southern Virginia for some years. There may be honest difference of opinions, among members of both races, as to its wisdom and effectiveness. Yet it deserves a wider trial. If such a plan hampers or limits in any way the effort of the Church to extend her blessings and privileges to all the people of the land, then it should be given up, without question. If, however, it makes possible more aggressive effort among the Negro population, the gathering in of a larger number of Negro members, and the organization and development of more Negro congregations, then it is worth retaining, even though it may seem to some not to represent in fullest measure that ideal of Christian brotherhood for which the Church must ever contend.

*The Negro Needs
the Gospel
as the Church
Proclaims It*

THESE, however, are matters to be determined by experience. One present fact is beyond dispute. The Negro needs the Gospel, and he needs it as this Church has received it and endeavors to set it forth in her services and teachings. One occasionally hears it said that the Church's standard of worship is unsuited to the Negro character. The fallacy of such a statement is indicated by the record of scores of Negro congregations. Their reverent and hearty rendering of the Prayer Book service is worthy of wide imitation. Even granting an element of truth in such a claim, the fact nevertheless remains that it is the function of any Christian Church to raise white or Negro character nearer to the Christian standard. No one who has seen anything of the religious extravagances fostered by many of the denominations most popular among the Negroes can doubt for a moment the Church's duty, or can question that she has before her a hard task. We have no intention of saying anything uncharitable. We simply state a fact widely known in the South, in saying that in many Negro congregations, not connected with the Church, religion and practical every-day morals are widely divorced. One reason why the Church can do more for the Negroes than any other Christian body is her insistence upon the moral code; her determination that religion shall be a matter of life, and not of extravagant emotion. Such teaching as this the Negro must have, for his own moral and social uplift. Indeed, it is of the highest concern to the welfare of the Nation that religion and morals should be indissolubly linked in the Negro character. Any plan of organization, any method of work that will enable the Church to render this service to 8,000,000 or 9,000,000 people, and through them to the Nation as a whole, is worth trying.

Relinquishing Appropriations and Increasing Gifts

AT the recent conventions of the Dioceses of West Virginia and Marquette, it was decided to relinquish, after September 1st, next, all aid from the Church at large for work among white people. West Virginia will still have an appropriation from the Board of Missions to assist it in dealing with the Negro problem. Marquette will receive no appropriation of any kind. Minnesota, while continuing to receive a small appropriation, will use it in future only for special forms of work, such as that among the Swedes, Indians and Negroes. These three instances of what might be called a courageous declaration of independence indicate a worthy desire to enable the Board to make larger appropriations to districts and dioceses less able to provide for their own aggressive work. Side by side with this willingness to do without aid, there appears a decided increase in the offerings from West Virginia and Minnesota. The Board has been assured that West Virginia will meet its apportionment of $2,600. While Minnesota is unable to make such a guarantee, it has nevertheless increased its offerings to June 1st by $400, as compared with the same date of the preceding year. The offerings of $3,266 from the Minnesota congregations are just about five times as large as the offerings from the congregations four years ago. Meantime, there has been an increase in the offerings from both the Sunday-schools and the Woman's Auxiliary. The Sunday-schools are ambitious now to undertake the entire support of a missionary bishop through their Easter offerings, and a poll of the schools is being taken to determine who Minnesota's bishop in the mission field shall be. The Diocese of Georgia, which announced a year ago that it would relinquish aid from the Church for work among the white people, has also made a worthy record. Its offerings to June 1st this year are nearly twice as large as they were to June 1st, 1904. While the record of Marquette is proportionately not so good, there are doubtless plans on foot which will insure steady advance in giving for missions without the diocese, just as advance will be needed in giving for missions within the diocese, now that all aid from general funds has been surrendered.

FOR the past year and a half many people have been reading a clever little book called Letters from a Chinese Official. Its

English diction is so striking, and its statements so plausible to the superficial thinker, that it is small wonder the average reader is led astray by its tone of superior wisdom. In our June 1904, issue we published a letter written by Bishop Graves, of Shanghai, to a friend in this country, pointing out a few of the many fallacies, inaccuracies and extravagances of the book. Bishop Graves at that time asserted, as many had already suspected, that the letters could not be the work of a Chinese pen. We learn now, on the authority of the brother of the author, that they were written by Mr. G. Lowes Dickinson, a fellow of King's College, Cambridge. As to the exact motive of the letters, we are not informed. Possibly they offered an available form through which the author might express his dislike of missionaries; or perhaps he thought it would be interesting to test the credulity of the English-reading public. In this latter case he may well feel satisfied with the result of the experiment. Or, again, as Bishop Graves suggested, it may be that he desired to lay bare some of the inconsistencies and low ideals of what we call "Western Civilization." "He is in effect," said the bishop, "fighting for the ideal and for what is right and true, and hates the thought that material progress is the end of all, and that money is the measure of all things. So far, one agrees with him, but the way to this end does not lie through China, nor can Confucius be our guide."

Porto Rican Progress

THE Church's work in Porto Rico is gradually developing with much promise. In addition to San Juan, Ponce and Vieques, where our missions were first established, services are now being held at Puerto de Tierra, at Aguirre, at La Carmelita in the mountains back from the southern coast, and at Mayaguez on the west coast. At Bayamon, an agricultural district in the interior, a few miles from San Juan, a growing colony of Americans desire the Church's services. Bishop Van Buren hopes to be able to accept their invitation, but will need about $5,000 for a church and house in addition to the gifts of the local people. Plans for the Ponce hospital are beginning to take definite shape. So important do the people consider this matter that they are trying to patch up the leaks in the present church building, instead of erecting a new structure, as they hoped to do. Thus they will be able to turn all their energy and funds toward the hospital enterprise. The local subscriptions already total about $3,000. The first convocation of the district was recently held in San Juan. Formal organization was effected and steps were taken to further the united offering of the men of the Church at the General Convention in Richmond. Although much has been accomplished during the last four years since the present bishop, as the first permanent missionary, was sent to the island, the Church missions are much less numerous than those of some other Christian bodies. The Presbyterian Board, for instance, is now maintaining fifty-three stations in the part of the island assigned to it, and this year is spending $35,000. A Presbyterian layman who recently visited Porto Rico went to the office of the Board on his return to New York and made a gift of $5,500 to meet a special need which had come to his attention during his visit. On the other hand, the Church's work presumably covers the whole island. Services are being maintained regularly or occasionally at about fifteen points, and the expenditure this year, including the stipends of all missionaries, is only $10,000. From New York Bishop Van Buren has received a pleasant message that a friend will give the last $500 to complete the equipment fund. He is anxiously looking for four others to make the necessary $2,500.

Apportionment
Figures*

WITH June 1st nine months of the present fiscal year were completed. The offerings during that time, available for the payment of the appropriations made by the Board of Missions, totalled $543,569.73. This is well beyond the half-way mark toward the total appropriations of $978,000. Will the Church give almost as many dollars in the last three months as it has in the first nine? The record of the month of May seems to indicate the ability of the Church to surpass by a generous margin anything that it has done in the past. The offerings from September 1st to June 1st are $56,000 in excess of those for the corresponding period of the previous year. But to provide for all the appropriations, replace the reserve funds and return borrowed money the record of June, July and August, 1904, must be bettered by fully $70,000. The tables embodying the results of nine months' giving are an interesting study. They show, among other things, that forty-eight dioceses and districts have given more this year than last, while thirty-four have fallen behind last year's record. Here are some of the increases: Newark is nearly $1,400 ahead; so is Connecticut. Maryland has made a round $1,000 advance, and Massachusetts is $1,500 ahead. New York, with $9,300, shows the largest single advance, with Pennsylvania a close second at $7,200. Long Island offerings are already $3,000 larger than they were for the entire last fiscal year. Where there are so many evidences of effort to make worthy offerings, the mention of special instances seems almost invidious. The steady gain in offerings during the last three years gives hope of a time to come in the not distant future when the offerings shall be fully equal to the appropriations. The Church can do it, and with patience and faith the Church will do it. As usual, the Sunday-schools are surpassing their own best previous record. As we go to press, the Easter offering amounts to more than $100,000. It seems certain that the $120,000 mark will be reached this year. No wonder the Board of Missions adopted the resolution found on page 554 of this issue.

A Henry Martyn Centennial JULY 8th marks the centennial of Henry Martyn's departure from England for India. He has been called the most heroic figure in the English Church during the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, and "the first great missionary of the Church after Boniface." His seven years of missionary life seem marked by little but failure, yet so fine was his spirit, so eager his desire to win men to truth, that few names stand so high in missionary annals, and few careers have more about them of inspiration. He was one of the most brilliant men in the Cambridge of his day, winning the coveted senior wranglership. In 1802, just after attaining his majority, he offered himself to the newly organized Church Missionary Society for India. Various circumstances prevented the full carrying out of his wishes at once, and it was not until July 8th, 1805, that he finally left England for India, under appointment as chaplain in the service of the East India Company. This post at first gave him little opportunity for work among the natives. Prejudice against any distinct missionary endeavor was strong. The East India Company itself was adverse to doing anything for the natives, and the then governor-general is credited with the assertion that a man who would preach Christianity to the people of India was fanatical enough to shoot a pistol into a powder magazine. In 1809, however, Martyn began his strictly missionary work among the people, and was the means under God of leading some to the Christian life. Ill-health compelled his departure from India and he turned his steps to Persia in the hope of preaching the Gospel among the Mohammedans and of perfecting his translation of the Scriptures into Arabic. This was in 1811. The following year, after suffering many privations, he was obliged to start for Europe in search of health. He died on the journey, October 16th, 1812. His name will be forever associated with Christian missions and with the ringing words he used upon his departure for India: "Now let me burn out for God!" We commend the reading of his biography before this anniversary year closes.*

THE NEW ST. STEPHEN'S CHURCH, MITO

NEW CHURCHES IN MITO AND AKITA, JAPAN

The consecration of three new churches in a single month is an unusual record even in a progressive missionary district like that of Tokyo. During April Bishop McKim visited Akita, Mito and Sendai to set apart the church buildings where in future the local congregations may gather for Christian worship instead of in the unattractive and inconvenient rented chapels that they have been accustomed to. An account of the consecration of the Sendai church appeared in the June number of THE SPIRIT OF MISSIONS. The following paragraphs tell of the consecration of the Akita and Mito buildings and indicate something of the difficulty under which Christian work must still be done.

THE CONSECRATION OF ST. STEPHEN'S, MITO

BY THE REVEREND JAMES CHAPPELL

MITO, though by no means a large town in point of population, or even a town that shows signs of future growth, is a place well known throughout the length and breadth of Japan because of the spirit of exclusiveness and invincible loyalty to the throne which has characterized its people.

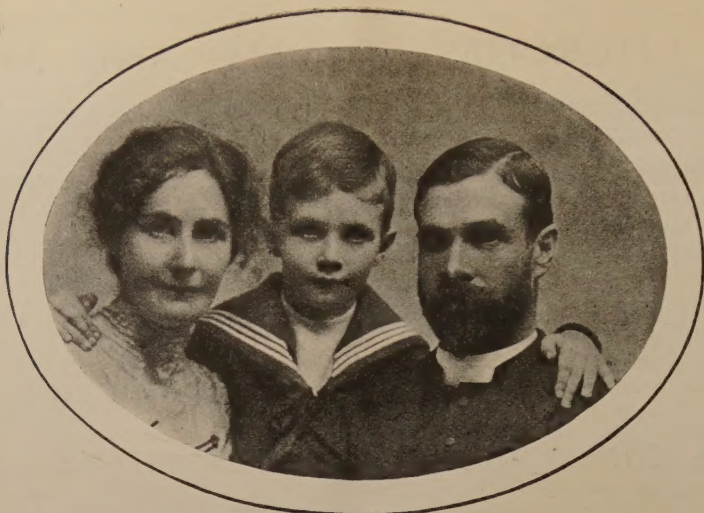

During the whole period of the Tokugawa shogunate—in spite of the fact that the first daimyo of Mito under the Tokugawa regime was Yorifusa, the youngest son of the Shogun Iyeyasu—the samurai of Mito remained firmly loyal to the emperor. To speak only of the time just preceding the Restoration, in the numerous battles fought under the leadership of Takeda Kounsai and in the Battle of Minato, the heads of all the noble families of this district sacrificed their lives for the sake of their imperial lord. The full meaning of this act of devotion can only be realized when it is known that the most important thing in life to the Japanese is the perpetuation of the family line.

It was from here that the samurai went forth to do Jikamon-no-kami to death because he had signed a treaty with Commodore Perry, to open certain ports to American trade, without first obtaining the sanction of the emperor.

About the same time Tokugawa Rakko, the then daimyo of Mito, ordered all the bells hanging from the porches of the various temples to be taken down and melted and made into cannon for the purpose of driving the unwelcome foreigners from Japanese soil. In a famous temple on the outskirts of the town, there is still to be seen in a state of careful preservation the big drum that was to have done duty in assembling the forces to undertake this mission.

Such being the spirit of the Mito people, it can easily be inferred that missionary work has been difficult. In Kamiichi (the upper town), owing largely to families from other parts of Japan having taken up their residence there, the results, if the numerous churches represented be taken together, will compare favorably with the results obtained in other places of about the same size. On the lower part of the town (Shimoichi) no apparent impression has as yet been made. The two sections of the town are utterly different. In one the spirit of progress is uppermost; in the other, sturdy conservatism still holds sway. Old and new Japan can thus be seen side by side.

The work of our Church was started by the Rev. R. W. Andrews, in December, 1899. With the aid, first of a lay-worker and afterward of a deacon, he continued to have charge until he left for home on furlough last year. During these first five years the arduous task of "breaking the soil" was successfully accomplished, and there were several baptisms. Mainly owing to removals, however, by the time we came here, about two months after Mr. Andrews left, the number attached to the mission had dwindled to four; three of these have left since, so that only one of the original members remains. Others, however, have come in to take their places. There have been several baptisms, and there is good reason to think that the Sei Ko Kwai is gradually taking a firm root here.

At last we have a church, and together with it all the aids to work which only a consecrated building can supply. Erected as it is on high ground, and surmounted by four crosses, so that a cross can be seen when looked at, or approached, from any direction, it stands as a silent but potential witness to the presence of Christ. Moreover, made as beautiful and attractive as possible by the means at our disposal, who can doubt draws, interested in the work at Mito. On her return to the United States she interested the various branches of the Auxiliary in the diocese to help toward the building of a church. It is, therefore, entirely owing to their united efforts that we, who have succeeded Mr. Andrews, can now rejoice in having a church building unsurpassed in point of comeliness by any other church in the diocese, outside of Tokyo.

The land and building complete represent an outlay of nearly $3,000. The church plant here is, therefore, by no but that it will appeal to some at least of the loyal subjects of the town as a fitting place for the worship of the King of kings and Lord of lords.

St. Stephen's was consecrated on Easter Day by Bishop McKim, and has the honor of being the first Christian church to be built and consecrated in Mito. The church itself is the gift of the Woman's Auxiliary of New York. About two years ago Mrs. Mary Watson, the president of the New York Auxiliary, visited this country, and during her stay became, through Mr. An-draws, interested in the work at Mito. means insignificant, and is sufficient to meet the needs of the parish for some few years to come.

Advantage was taken of the bishop's presence for the consecration to present a class of five men and five women for confirmation.

Special invitations to the service were sent to the heads of the various government offices, and to representatives of the other churches in the town. It was a pleasure to me to see that, with the exception of the Roman Catholics, all the other churches—the Greek, the Presbyterian, the Baptist and the Friends—were represented at the service.

At an afternoon service four young men, one woman and her little boy were baptized. The four young men are students of the graduating class of the middle school and had been admitted catechumens on Christmas Day. They are the first fruits of our night-school work, although there is no doubt that they were influenced in the first instance by the noble life of another young Christian man, a Mr. Haniya, whose recent removal to Yokohama has been a source of deep regret to us all. These four young men expressed a desire to be given the names of the four evangelists at baptism.

The evening service was very largely attended, the seating accommodation of the church being quite inadequate. Dr. Motoda, of Grace Church, Tokyo, was the special preacher. He has a wide reputation as a scholar, and the knowledge that he was to preach doubtless had much to do with the assembling of the people in such large numbers.

Thus Easter Day, 1905, passed in this most conservative town of Japan.

THE CONSECRATION OF ST. SAVIOUR'S, AKITA

BY THE REVEREND W. F. MADELEY

THE work of the Church in Akita is only three years old. I first paid a visit of inspection here in the autumn of 1899, but it was not till three years later that I was able to move here. At first we had a great deal of difficulty in getting a suitable house for a preaching place. We moved about from place to place until last summer when we were enabled to buy a house almost at the rear of our own residence. This house we use for a parish house, and adjoining we have built a small church, which was consecrated April 2d.

On the evening of April 1st five candidates were baptized and eight were confirmed. We had hoped to have ten, but one was prevented from coming by business, and another by sickness in her family.

The consecration service, conducted by Bishop McKim, assisted by myself and Mr. Uemura, the catechist, took place the next morning. The offering was devoted to the formation of an endowment fund.

The money for this church and parish house was raised by specials in answer to my appeal of last year, and by a gift from the bishop, supplemented by the generosity of friends here in Japan, who kindly helped by providing such mundane things as paint, drains, and fencing, which are always necessary, but are not the things that people are most willing to contribute for. The Christians have also done something by devoting the whole of the Sunday morning offerings to the fund for two years. They also provided the altar, prayer desks and lectern.

Work all through this northern province is opening up in a very encouraging way. At Odate, four hours north of here by rail, the bishop confirmed four people. He hopes soon to put a resident catechist there. At Arakawa, a copper mine thirty miles south, we have a family of very earnest people, two of whom have been baptized and confirmed.

The catechist and I pay fortnightly visits to both these places. The prospects are bright and cheering; there is but one drawback, and that is lack of men, both foreign and native. We could place six catechists and two priests in the province without a moment's hesitation, and we could find work here in Akita for another priest and a catechist.

ALL SAINTS' HOSPITAL: AN ACCIDENT CASE ARRIVING AT THE HOSPITAL GATE
The ambulance was given by the Sunday-school children of Cincinnati

AN EASTERNER'S VIEW OF A WESTERN MISSION HOSPITAL

BY M. E. B.

HAVING for some years been associated with hospital work in the East, it was with some curiosity that I made my first visit to our Church hospital at South McAlester, Indian Territory. So many conveniences, which we have learned to regard as positive necessities at home, are unobtainable in the territory, that at first thought it seemed impossible to conduct successfully a hospital without water-works, steam or furnace heat, or any drainage system.

But when, having climbed to the top of a rocky hill, we reached All Saints', even the exterior, with its fresh white paint, its long, cool galleries, and its well-kept lawns, convinced me that all difficulties had been overcome, and that this, the only Church hospital in the territory, was one of which all Churchmen might be proud.

South McAlester is as unlike eastern towns as anything that could be imagined. Its business streets are in a valley, its residence district is up on the hills, and such hills! Rock formations crop out in all directions, and reasonably passable streets are out of the question. It is the centre of a mining district and an important railroad junction and division point. Two of the chief railroads of the territory cross here. For years All Saints' has been the only hospital of any kind in either Indian Territory or Oklahoma—a district which now has a population of close upon a million people.

All Saints' has been chiefly a railroad and a mining hospital; and a large majority of the cases are of a kind I have rarely seen in ordinary hospitals. The character of its work in future may be somewhat modified, owing to changes in the agreements with the miners and operators and the establishment of a Roman hospital. Bishop Brooke sees no reason to fear that, in spite of these changes, All Saints' will not have a future of still greater usefulness. Its present capacity of fifty beds is often taxed to the utmost.

As I passed with one of the nurses through the wards for the first time, I noticed that most of the men were either maimed for life or horribly scarred by burns. Most of the miners are foreigners from all parts of the days are spent in the black pit, and whose only home is the miserable little shack which the mining company builds for each of its employees.

We passed from the wards to the new operating room—the C. D. Frick Memorial—of which doctors and nurses alike are very proud. This room has been given by Dr. Frick, of Kansas City, in memory of his brother, who was for some years house surgeon of All Saints'. The room is prized not only because world, and know nothing of our language or customs. Very often the word "hospital" seems to be in their minds synonymous with death, and when they are first brought in they are so distrustful of both doctors and nurses that it is difficult to care for them. However, they soon learn better, and I was much amused to see how quickly they picked up words and phrases with which to describe their troubles and to ask for relief.

What a luxury a few weeks in this hospital, where are cleanliness, quiet and rest, must be to a man or boy whose

it is absolutely perfect and up-to-date in every particular, but also as a memorial of him who was loved and respected by every one connected with the hospital, and who lost his life while serving it.

Dr. Frick's mother has also furnished a private ward, and this, it is hoped, will help toward making the hospital self-supporting, although it must still depend largely on assistance from kind friends outside the territory.

I have said that South McAlester has no water-works or drainage system. This may not convey much to an Easterner. Let me explain what it means to the hospital workers. It means first that all water must be pumped from a cistern, or in dry seasons bought by the barrel, and carried to the various parts of the hospital; and secondly, that there is absolutely no plumbing throughout the building. Add to this the facts that ice is a very expensive luxury, that all heating must be done by soft-coal fires, and that fresh provisions—both meat and vegetables—are far less plentiful than they are in the East, and it will be seen

This we gladly did, and were well repaid by the interest and gratitude of all the patients.

As I said good-night to the men, and left the building, I wished that more of our people might have an opportunity to visit All Saints' Hospital, for then, I am sure, it would have that hearty interest and support from all Churchmen, both in the territory and out of it, which a mission hospital so well deserves and so greatly depends upon for its success.

ALL SAINTS' HOSPITAL: THE PATIENT IN THE SURGICAL WARD

that the matron and nurses must contend against many inconveniences.

After supper, nurses and convalescents gathered in the little chapel for a short service, conducted by the chaplain. The chapel is just a small room with a tiny altar and a piano-organ at one end. The service was very short and simple, and we sang familiar hymns, so that even those who could not read or speak English joined in and carried the tunes of "Nearer, my God, to Thee," and "Jesus, Lover of my Soul." After the service many of those in bed asked that we might sing again in the wards.

Some will doubtless want to see the work of All Saints' Hospital expressed in figures. The most recent statistics for a full year show facts like these: 944 patients were cared for, receiving in all 10,143 days of treatment. Fifty-six free patients received 961 days of care. The hospital earned in round numbers $12,700, and received in gifts about $1,200. From its training-school four nurses were graduated. If Bishop Brooke could be assured of an income of $2,500 over and above what the hospital earns, a great burden of anxiety would be lifted from his shoulders.

THE ALARM BELL

BY THE REVEREND D. TRUMBULL HUNTINGTON

CHINA is waking up. She has been asleep for a long time and now she is waking up, and she makes a dreadful noise about it. Among the most prominent symptoms of the waking process is the new literature which has sprung up during the last few years. After the Chinese-Japanese war in 1895, the newspaper came into prominence. Since the Boxer outbreak, this new literature has arisen. It covers nearly all subjects in a wonderfully superficial and inaccurate fashion. The total number of books published amounts to over eleven hundred, but most of them are mere pamphlets, there being very few which will, by any possibility, be read ten years hence. Practically all these books are, either explicitly or implicitly, revolutionary. Many of them are also bitterly anti-foreign.

The style of these works is peculiar. There is a strong tendency to adopt foreign idiom, and not infrequently the authors introduce English words, possibly to help to make their meaning clear, possibly to display their English. If anyone knows enough English to understand the technical terms which they use, he will hardly spend his time on works of this sort.

Some of these books are supposed to be translations. Others are original. It would be difficult to say which are the more inaccurate. The Rev. J. Darroch, in an article on "The New Literature in China" (to which I am indebted for most of this general information), gives extracts from a translation of Mill's Essay on Liberty, in which the author is made to ascribe the Sepoy Mutiny to the insistence on Christian teaching in schools by the Indian Government! He also makes St. Paul suffer on Calvary! Other books of even greater inaccuracy are to be found among them, together with a few of real value.

The purpose of this article, however, is not to give a general account of these new books, but to tell about one particular book which I have just read. It is called The Alarm Bell, and professes to be written by a native of the province of Hunan, and to be printed in Shanghai. As a matter of fact, it was undoubtedly printed in Japan, for no Chinese would dare print such a book. It has been suppressed, and three book-sellers in Shanghai have been arrested and sentenced to terms of imprisonment varying from three months to two years for selling it.

"Good Heavens! Good Heavens! They've come! They've come! Who've come? The foreigners have come. It's bad. It's bad. It's bad for everybody. Young and old, men and women, high and low, rich and poor, officials and scholars, merchants and mechanics, all sorts of men, from now on, are just the sheep and cattle in that foreigner's pen, the fish and meat in his pot. If he wants to kill, he will kill. If he wants to boil, he will boil. We cannot move half an inch. Oh! This is the day of death come for all of us.

"Bitterness! Bitterness!! Bitterness!!!" (The exclamation points, though wholly un-Chinese, are in the book.) "The money which we brothers have gathered with so much toil will all be stolen by the foreigners. Our beloved wives and parents and children will be torn apart by the foreigners. Every man and every woman, fathers and sons and brothers, husbands and wives and children, will all be slain and ravished by those foreigners. The way of life for us, brothers, stops just here. Our descendants will be cut off forever. A forest of guns and a rain of shot, this is to be the last field for us brothers. Dark prisons and gloomy dungeons are to be our resting place. Our great rivers and lofty mountains are to be turned into a land of dogs and sheep. The brilliant and the honorable sink down into most wretched slaves. Alas! does not this wound the heart?"

Impossible as it may seem, he goes on in much the same strain, without repeating himself, for twenty pages. One cannot but admire the vocabulary of invective which he possesses. A few more illustrations will suffice.

"It is true! It is true!! It is true!!! China will be divided. This talk of division is not a matter of to-day. In the time of Kangshi" (two hundred years ago), "Russia seized the Amour Province. In the seventeenth year of Tao Kwang" (1838—a slight error—1840 is the correct date), "England sent three thousand six hundred troops and attacked the seven coast provinces and destroyed many cities. In the twenty-second year of Tao Kwang peace was arranged, five ports being opened, Hong-kong being conceded, and an indemnity of $21,000,000 being paid." It is hardly necessary to mention that this refers to the celebrated opium war, in which, whatever we may think of the morality of the opium trade, the Chinese certainly put themselves technically in the wrong at almost every point.

The author goes on to state, with more or less inaccuracy, the various attacks upon China's integrity which have been made in the past, and to give the wildest newspaper reports of the future intentions of various governments, taking care to make the proceedings of foreign governments appear as black as possible. It must be confessed that they do not appear very white in any light.

The following has particular interest for Americans. I do not know just how much foundation of fact there is for it, but I should say very little. (All paragraphs begin with a threefold exclamation.)

"Shame! Shame!! Shame!!! Look at our magnificent Empire. Did not the little states round about, from of old, call it the Great Kingdom of the Heavenly Dynasty? Why has a first class kingdom thus dropped into the fourth class? When foreigners do not revile it as the 'Sick Man of the East,' they revile it as a race of barbarians. When Chinese go to a foreign country, they are not reckoned equal to cows and horses. America formerly summoned Chinese workmen to her shores. This year one Tan Sui Yuen was beaten to death without cause by American yamen-runners, and there was no means of reparation. Minister Liang's brother was also shamefully treated by American policemen and dared not protest. When Chinese students go to America, the hotels are not willing to receive them. There was a student named Sen who was intimate with an American student. One day the American student said to him, 'I am intimate with you, but outside you must not speak to me.'

"Mr. Sen was astonished and inquired, 'What is the meaning of this?'

"The American student said, 'You Chinese are the slaves of the Manchus. The Manchus are our slaves. If my fellow-countrymen knew that I was a friend of a doubly enslaved person they would certainly not reckon me as a man.'

"Mr. Sen, on hearing this, died of anger! America is the most just of foreign countries, and if they treat us in this way what will other countries do?"

The inferences to be drawn from all this as to the probable results of partition are obvious.

"Kill! Kill!! Kill!!! Men now say that China has reached the limit of poverty and weakness. Guns and cannon are few. How can we fight against foreign kingdoms? I know this very well, and if other countries were not dismembering China we certainly would not imitate the Boxers and stir up trouble. Now other countries will not let us speak out but just want to divide us. Read crosswise or up and down, it all means partition. It is better to kill a few than to be partitioned without knowing it. The proverb says, 'Drive a dog to the wall and he will surely turn and bite.' Perhaps four hundred million people are not equal to a dog, then? If the foreign soldiers do not come, all right. If they do come, let every one be brave and not fear. Let the scholar put down his pen and the farmer his plough, and the tradesman his business, and the mechanic his tools. Let them sharpen their swords and load their guns and drink a cup of bloody wine, and rush on with a great shout to kill the foreign devils!"

One would naturally expect from such a tirade that all foreigners should be exterminated at once, but in the latter half of the book he modifies his wildness somewhat. There are ten points which we should observe, he says. The first is, that any appearance of goodness on the part of foreigners is merely a bait to get the Chinese into their power. They are all like Russia, of whose atrocities he gives an exaggerated account, though the reality was bad enough.

Most of his points it is not necessary to go into in detail. His hatred of the foreigner is shown to be almost equalled by his hatred of the Manchu government, and if they cannot resist the foreigners he proposes to turn them out. His fifth point is very interesting, as it shows more clearly than almost anything else the influence of the new literature.

"The fifth point is races of men. It is very important that we should be clear about this. There are five continents in the world. One is called Asia." (China, Japan, Corea and India are on this continent.) "Another is called Europe." (Russia, England, Germany, France and other countries are on this continent.) "Another is called Africa." (Formerly there were many countries on this continent, but they have all been destroyed by European countries.) "Another is called Australia." (It has been seized by England.) "These four continents are all on the eastern half of the world." (The shape of the earth is like a ball. That which is in the east is called the eastern half. That which is in the west is called the western half.) "Another is called America." (The United States and Mexico are on this continent.) "It alone is in the western half of the globe. These five continents are inhabited by five races. First the yellow race. All the peoples of Asia, except India, are of the yellow race. The second is the white race. . . . The third is the red race. . . . etc.

"The sum total of all the people on the earth is 1,600,000,000. Of the yellow race there are 500,000,000." (A hundred years ago there were 800,000,000. 300,000,000 have been destroyed.) "Of the white race there are 800,000,000." (A hundred years ago there were only 500,000,000. 300,000,000 have been added.)

He goes on to show that the white race alone is increasing, and that it is time the yellow race did something about it.

His seventh point is that for the extermination of the white race it is necessary to learn their methods. Point eight gives some warnings on the necessity of internal reforms. Probably this section does not meet the approval of the officials. The tenth point is that any attempt at partition must be resisted by every man over twenty years old, and if that is not sufficient the fight must be continued from generation to generation.

The last section contains exhortations to ten classes of people—officials, soldiers, great families, scholars, rich men, poor men, conservatives and progressives, wanderers, Christians, and women. Much of the advice taken out of its connection is good, but the end in view rather takes away one's appreciation of it.

"The ninth is an exhortation to Christians to let love of country rule. Religion and country are not in the same class. But we must by no means let other people steal our country. In all the countries of Europe many religions are practised without prohibition. People of all religions love the country of their birth. For instance, there is the Pope at Rome. If the Romans wanted to steal other countries the Romanists of those countries would certainly oppose the Romans for the sake of their country. If the Pope himself came they would not give way. Japan formerly followed Confucianism. There was a noted teacher who had a great many scholars. One day one of the scholars asked him, saying, 'We reverence Confucius supremely. Supposing that he were still alive and were appointed a general in China for the purpose of attacking our country, how should we act?' The teacher replied, 'Confucius made much of patriotism. If we surrendered to him we would be sinning against him. But if we went together and seized him, we would then be acting according to Confucius's doctrine.' The people of all countries do not forbid men to follow the religions of other countries, if thus they may get the good things of others; but they simply permit them to follow the religion and do not permit them to seize the land, and thus each country becomes strong. There are some men in China who would oppose the foreign religion with their life, and there are others who, on entering the religion, seem as if they had become foreigners, and forget that they are Chinese. They use the power of the religion to oppress us Chinese, not remembering that, from the time of their forefathers, they are natives of this country. They have cast off their parents. How can they be accounted as men? Others on entering the church cast off their friends and relations and only recognize the foreigner.

If the foreigner wants his country, he will consent. If the foreigner wants to kill his friends and relations, he will consent. Alas! Is there such a religion on the face of the earth? I have read the books of all religions, and there is not one that does not say that we ought to love our country. If the men who believe Jesus' doctrine do not love their country, they are truly sinners against Jesus. I also know that many of you have been oppressed by the officials, so as to make you hate them; but the people of our country are many. For the offence of a few should you hate them all? Your ancestors have not offended you. For a breath of anger will you desert them all?"

As I have said this book has been officially suppressed, but before its suppression it had penetrated the whole Empire. I should think it had been more widely read than any other new book. I do not think, however, that it will do very much harm. It certainly gives expression to a very widespread feeling, but so long as the officials are opposed to a rising there will not be much trouble, and when they are in favor of it there will be trouble anyway.

The difference between this book and the old anti-foreign literature is interesting. The underlying motive is an enthusiastic, but misguided patriotism. Foreign territorial aggression and harsh treatment of his fellow-countrymen are the things that most stir his blood. The Christian religion is not attacked, except in so far as it interferes with political matters. Up to this point we would all agree with him heartily. But, as Mencius says, "To act as you are acting in order to obtain what you desire is like climbing a tree to catch fish."

"Is it so bad as that?" said the king.

"Worse," said Mencius. "If you climb a tree to catch fish, although you do not get any fish, no calamity will follow. But doing what you are doing to seek what you desire, doing it, moreover, with all your heart, calamities will surely follow."

THE REVEREND FREDERICK FOOTE JOHNSON

BY THE REVEREND GEORGE HICKMAN BUCK

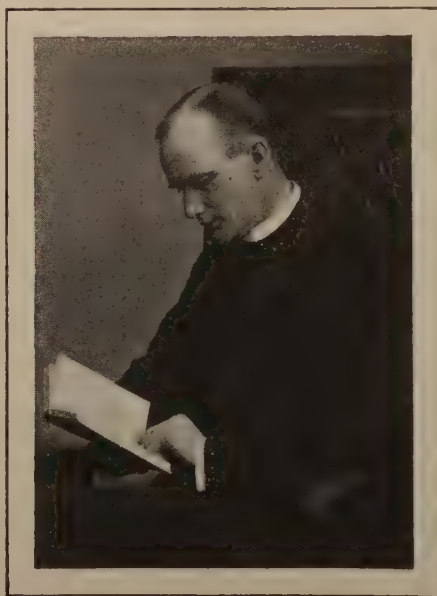

THE Rev. Frederick Foote Johnson, whom the House of Bishops elected, on June 8th, to be a missionary bishop to assist Bishop Hare of South Dakota, was born in Newtown, Connecticut, April 23d, 1866. Here his early life was spent, and for three years he taught in the district schools. He entered Trinity College, Hartford, in 1890, graduating with honors in the class of 1894. His theological training was received at the Berkeley Divinity-school, Middletown, where he graduated with the class of 1897. During his Berkeley residence he was private secretary to Bishop Williams. He received his deacon's orders in Trinity Church, Newtown, November 11th, 1896, and his priest's orders in Denver, Col., October 15th, 1897. For three months after his ordination he served St. Barnabas's Mission, Glenwood Springs, Col., and for one year was curate in St. Stephen's Parish, Colorado Springs. For a brief period he was rector of St. John's Church, Boulder, Col.

In 1899 he married Miss Susan L. Beers, of Newtown. On account of the ill health of Mrs. Johnson, he removed from Boulder to Southern California and became rector of Trinity Church, Redlands, where he remained five years. During this time there was erected a beautiful and complete church building. Mrs. Johnson died at Redlands in June, 1901.

In April, 1904, Bishop Vinton invited Mr. Johnson to become general missionary for the Diocese of Western Massachusetts. In this position he has proved himself to be a judicious, capable and acceptable missionary. He came into national prominence a short time ago, when the Union Congregational Church at North Brookfield became a Protestant Episcopal Church. About a year ago Mr. Johnson was invited to hold Church services in North Brookfield, and it was largely through his wisdom and influence that the change came which resulted in the transfer of a most beautiful church building from the Congregational society to the Diocese of Western Massachusetts.

At the time of his election to the episcopate Mr. Johnson had under consideration a call to become associate rector of St. Paul's Church, Boston.

Mr. Johnson is well qualified, intellectually and spiritually, as well as by his experience, to take up the work as assistant to Bishop Hare. Should he accept the call, the Church will find in him a true son of the faith, and a man who will in every particular render efficient service in carrying forward her work in South Dakota.

NEW MEXICO AND ARIZONA NOTES

BY BISHOP KENDRICK

REPORTS at our recent convocations show that the number confirmed last year in Arizona was well above the average. Confirmations in New Mexico were as large last year as the year before. Statistics show a falling off in communicants in both districts. This was owing to an error in the report of a mission a year ago in New Mexico, which had to be corrected this year, and to a large number "ceased to report" in Arizona—dead wood. There has been a small gain in communicants, but the net gain does not equal the number confirmed—showing that more are leaving most of our towns than are coming to us.

IN Arizona the corner-stone of a church has been laid. Every congregation but one was supplied with a missionary at the date of the convocation, May 3d. There was a distinct gain last year in the reorganization of Grace Church, Tucson. Another decided gain has been the equipment of the Santa Fé Pacific mission, extending from central New Mexico to the western limit of Arizona, with a missionary. Interest in missions has been well sustained. We are getting the Woman's Auxiliary organized in our congregations. Reports from the Indian work are very satisfactory.

IN the missionary district of New Mexico a church has been built, at Alamogordo; a new circuit was organized last year—the Pecos Valley mission—and manned with a missionary; St. John's, Albuquerque, has provided itself with a good rector, something that was very much needed; St. Clement's, El Paso, Tex., is outgrowing its building and is keeping pace with the city; the Rio Grande mission, vacant for some time, has been supplied with a missionary; everything was supplied at the time of the convocation, May 11th, except the parish at Las Vegas, which is still vacant. Our clergy are faithful men, doing good work. They preach Christ and His Church.

AS a rule, the newer communicants are better material than the older ones. But it is to be remembered that among those whom I found here were some of God's elect army. One of those has been taken from us recently, Mrs. C. Bowman Lyon, of Las Cruces, N. M. She stood among the foremost of our women in the Church in New Mexico. She was the daughter of that pioneer layman, Mr. George D. Bowman, lay reader and warden at the old mission house at La Mesilla, N. M.

FROM the report of the last meeting of the Board of Missions, which I have just seen this morning, I am prepared to hear that nothing more can be done for us. Though disappointed we shall not complain. There is other work that is more important than ours, I know, and the Board cannot spend what it does not receive.

CAPE MOUNT NOTES

MISS MAHONY, writing from the "House of Bethany," at Cape Mount, West Africa, says:

"The settlement work is going along quietly. Miss Ridgely has opened a day-school. At present she is teaching under the trees by the side of the house, but is having a school-house built, with money given her by some Sunday-schools in Baltimore, as well as with some of her own money. The children are fond of Miss Ridgely, are anxious to come to school, and are showing some improvement. But they have practically no idea of right or wrong. They pilfer from each other, and even from Miss Ridgely, and never hesitate to tell a lie. I venture to say that there is not a more neglected place on God's earth than around Cape Mount. My heart aches when I look around and see the field and what is growing in it, and realize what might grow in it if men and women would only offer for the work here.

"The dispensary is meeting a real need. I am too busy to keep a daily record, as sometimes I am dressing sores until it is almost too dark to see. One day I counted fifty-three medical and surgical cases. Unless the Church's workers were here with help for them, these people would keep on suffering. They have never had a doctor. When sickness comes there is nothing for them to do but to lie down and die, unless some of the simple herbs in the vicinity will help them. Within the past few months more of the native Africans have come to me than ever before. They seem to be losing their faith in charms and jujus and are coming to the 'white woman' for help. Last week the son of Fartilleh, the native king of an important tribe, sent a messenger to tell me his sister was sick, and asking for medicine. I sent some and also sent word that I would come if she did not get better, but the medicine proved effective.

"Our Sunday-school is slowly growing. Several native women now come each Sunday. I had to make clothing to cover them, as well as for the boys and girls, many of the latter coming clad only with a string of beads. Each Sunday the native women receive a picture illustrating some Bible incident and are always told the story about it. They fasten these pictures on the walls of their huts, and when their native friends come the women repeat the story as well as they can. Much can be taught by the pictures; all our talking cannot give them the idea that a picture can, and the pictures of the Crucifixion seem to make them understand so much of Christ's love for us. One little girl, the child of a Liberian father and native mother, seeing a picture in one of my books for children, in which a pig is doing some wonderful things dressed up and going to market, asked if the pigs in our country wore clothing. When told no, she said, 'I didn't know, ma'am; the picture shows it, and they don't wear any here.' I suppose that as the people here, as well as the pigs, wear no clothing, she thought that if the people at home wore clothing, so must the pigs.

"During the last few months I have been able to give away many Arabic New Testaments. Much might be done if I had some simple leaflets written and printed in Arabic, as the people are anxious to get any reading matter, and there is always someone, even in the smallest town, who reads Arabic."

NOTES ON THE CHURCH STUDENTS' MISSIONARY ASSOCIATION

AT the May meeting of the Executive Committee Mr. G. A. Oldham, who has completed his course in the General Seminary, resigned from the committee, and the Rev. Everett P. Smith, Educational Secretary of the Board of Missions, was elected to fill his place. At the same meeting, Charles Townsend, Jr. (General Seminary, '06), was elected to act as Recording Secretary. The General Secretary, the Rev. H. A. McNulty, will continue in office another year.

SINCE the last report, the following chapters have been admitted to membership: St. Paul's School, Garden City, N. Y.; Hoosac School, Hoosac, N. Y.; Shattuck School, Faribault, Minn. Several colleges have signified their intention of joining later.

DURING the past year the General Secretary has visited all but two of the present chapters, viz., King's College, Nova Scotia, and the Church Divinity-school of the Pacific, San Mateo, Cal. In all, about seventy educational institutions have been visited, many of them twice or more, and almost without exception the second visit has revealed an advance in missionary interest on the part of the student body. This has been the most encouraging sign in all the year's work, and should be a spur to renewed effort during the coming year. A feeling of great responsibility should rest upon those who have been elected to office in the college Church societies, C. S. M. A., and Brotherhood Chapters. For upon them devolves during the summer the task of preparing systematically for the coming year's work. If we are to have among our students a missionary spirit, all preparation for mission study and mission work must be left until the opening of the colleges in the fall. Arrangements should be made at once for a definite course of work. Leaders should be secured for such work, who will study to fit themselves to bring missions in a living, interesting, inspiring way before their fellow-students. "Ye shall be witnesses," our Lord says. Many more of us than we think can fit ourselves to be indeed His witnesses, if we will but try to do for His sake that little preparatory work such witness demands. And the constraining love of Christ is surely inspiration and help enough to make us perform those things which during the past year many and many a student has promised to perform. Some have during the past year felt the call to face the need for workers in His vineyard. Some have perhaps realized that they have not been doing all they might in college or school or seminary to make their fellows know that there is a call for workers and a crying need for men. Before we know it, another year will be upon us, with its added responsibilities, and younger men and women will be coming whom we must either help or hinder. Can we not resolve to be missionaries to them, and be glad to undertake work that last year we half intended to do and then let go because we lost the inspiration? Cannot those who did splendid work this year—and there have been many of them—go back to their several institutions encouraged to undertake even greater things for Christ? In hardly any institution the Secretary has visited have there not been some who are turning to the mission field for their life work. Many more are needed.

IN a recent visit to the University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn., the Secretary found five men looking forward to the foreign field, while three others are considering such work. At St. Faith's Deaconess Training-school in New York, three graduates go this summer to China, and two to the Lemhi Agency, District of Boisé. The school is preparing a large percentage of the present undergraduates for different parts of the mission field. These are but two examples of the deeper missionary spirit that is growing among us. Cambridge and the Philadelphia Divinity-school and the General Seminary and Harvard are sending out of their best to the foreign field. Virginia and Berkeley had men this year who would gladly have gone, but could not now.

CONTRASTS

“WE have had beautiful weather for Rowland Hall Commencement,” says Bishop Spalding. “The school closes a most prosperous year with a very bright outlook for the future. But St. Mark's Hospital is the most discouraging thing. Less than $5,000 have been given toward the nurses' home, as the proposed memorial to Bishop Leonard. The hospital is in wretched repair, and unless a good sum of money can be raised I really do not know what we shall do. I went through the new Mormon hospital yesterday and it is perfectly magnificent. We must keep our hospital up to the standard and hold the patronage of our faithful doctors. Besides, the quiet influence which goes forth from a hospital is one of the best means of helping the Mormon people.”

A NEW PORTO RICO STATION

THE new mission opened at Mayaguez, Porto Rico, about a month ago is making steady progress. The Sunday congregations average 100, with an almost equal number on Thursday evenings, besides many children, of whom about forty have been enrolled in the Sunday-school. There is evident need for a Church day-school and Bishop Van Buren hopes to be able to open one in the autumn.

TELL IT OUT AMONG THE HEATHEN

A HEATHEN widow lay dying. She had walked many miles upon a dusty road to reach the dispensary. She was sad, worn, weary, and heart-broken. As the nurse administered the medicine, she told of Jesus. The next day the woman said, “Tell me His name again, tell me His name again!” The nurse repeated the story, the woman caught it and all through her dying hours she murmured the name of Jesus. This woman is but one among many millions who, if they could, would say to you and to me, “Tell me His name again.” If God in His providence has closed up the way for you to go, then in His name send some one. God forbid that any of us in the last great day shall hear the wail of the lost saying, “You might have told me of Jesus.”

“The work of the world is done by few God awaits a part to be done by you.”

THE NEW ST. ELIZABETH'S CHURCH AND SETTLEMENT HOUSE

PROGRESS IN HONOLULU

THE CONSECRATION OF A NEW CHURCH AND SETTLEMENT HOUSE

ON May 7th Bishop Restarick consecrated the new St. Elizabeth's Chapel in Honolulu.

This church, with the adjacent St. Elizabeth's House, is located in the centre of the oriental and Hawaiian section of the city. The erection of both church and settlement house was made possible through the gifts of Mr. W. A. Proctor, of Southern Ohio. A varied work is being done at St. Elizabeth's among both Chinese and Hawaiians. The local branch of the Girls' Friendly Society is opening before Hawaiian girls even greater possibilities than the work offers to American girls. Before long, it is expected that a Chinese branch will be under way. A cooking school is one means of extending helpful influence into home life, and the sewing school, bringing together every week forty or fifty women, besides accomplishing immediate good, opens the way for helpful Christian influence upon its members. So, too, the Chinese sewing school brings together non-Christian women under Christian auspices.

But not all of St. Elizabeth's work is done on behalf of the women and girls. Four evenings of the week there are classes for Chinese men with an enrolment of seventy earnest students. Regular religious instruction is given and classes are formed for those who wish to make some further study of Christian truth. On two other evenings boys' clubs for Hawaiians and Chinese enjoy the advantages of St. Elizabeth's House. Sunday brings the opportunity for Sunday-school work, and while this is not always as successful as might be desired among the younger people, it seems to be eminently successful among the elders, particularly the Chinese men, of whom there are two classes, numbering between thirty and forty members. "The Chinese converts," remarks the Pacific Commercial Advertiser in its account of the consecration, "are quite numerous, judging from the congregation,

A fortnight after the consecration service thirteen young Chinese men, in the presence of a large congregation, publicly renounced the heathenism in which they had been born and nurtured and expressed their desire to be admitted as catechumens and to be prepared for baptism. They are among the fruits of the work begun by Deaconess Drant two years ago, and since her retirement successfully carried on under the direction of the Rev. W. E. Potwine, assisted by Deaconess Sands and other helpers.

THE SHANGHAI MISSIONARIES DISCUSS THEIR WORK

AS one of the means of checking up their work, improving their methods, and generally keeping abreast of the changed conditions in China, the American Church missionaries in the District of Shanghai hold an annual conference. At the last session of this conference held in St. John's Pro-Cathedral in February, the first day was given to a series of devotional services conducted by Bishop Graves. On the following days topics bearing upon the work of practical administration were discussed.

Plans for increasing the efficiency of the Chinese helpers were considered under the question: "Can the native workers be given more responsibility and initiative than they now have, and in what ways?" It has always been the policy of our missions to encourage native initiative and to place responsibility as rapidly as possible upon native helpers, but there are many difficulties in the way of rapid progress along these lines. Some of these difficulties arise from the character of Chinese social life; others are the result of lack of ability on the part of the Chinese, who may represent only the first generation of Christians, to assume larger responsibilities. The isolation of native workers often deadens their energy. The proposal to help solve the problem by means of a summer school for clergy and catechists shows that the mission is quite abreast of one phase of present American life. The steps already taken, upon the initiation of the Chinese Laymen's Conference recently held at St. John's College, to establish a Chinese lending library for the benefit of Chinese clergy and laity, indicate an encouraging recognition of the need for careful study.

The relation of the educational to the evangelistic work was taken up under the question: "Is it possible to bring into the Church a greater number of students by our educational work?" While it was generally recognized that school work is not an end in itself but a means toward the Christianizing of China, it was pointed out that for the present the statistics of baptisms and confirmations must necessarily seem meagre; but all the while forces are being set at work which will remold Chinese life in such a way as to make possible in the future the much more rapid spread of Christian teaching. Then, too, most pupils are minors. Filial obedience is one of the prime characteristics of Chinese social life, and nothing should be done to give the Chinese the impression that Christianity teaches disrespect for the wishes of parents. Many young men in the schools are really convinced Christians, but in the face of parental opposition, refrain from making open profession of their faith.

Among the decisions reached by the conference was a determination to hold monthly meetings for Chinese clergy and catechists for devotional purposes and for the discussion of questions concerning the Church's work. The statistics of the mission are increasing steadily, last year showing a gain of 163 in the number of baptized Christians.

AN EPISCOPAL VISITATION IN CENTRAL CHINA

BY THE RIGHT REVEREND LOGAN H. ROOTS,
BISHOP OF HANKOW

MY first episcopal visitation was to Ichang and out-stations, starting from Hankow by the steamer Tungting on March 25th and going straight to Ichang. The trip was quiet, and we reached Ichang without sticking on a sand-bank, which is so likely to delay navigation on the river above Hankow. On the steamer I made the acquaintance of some missionaries of the American Baptist Missionary Union, who were returning to their station in Szchuan. Besides the very agreeable company of these Americans, we had the rather unusual experience of travelling with a Chinese official, who took passage in the European quarters. He sat at the table with us, and ate our food in the same way as we did, and though he knows no language but Chinese, he was evidently very favorably inclined toward foreigners, and fairly intelligent about the world at large. He has held high office in Szchuan, and was returning thither as an expectant official. On our arrival at Ichang, he was received with many salutes from old-fashioned gunboats, and with considerable pomp of banners and attendants, while he remained what he had been on the whole voyage, a simple, self-possessed, observant gentleman.

Mr. Huntington and Mr. Goddard met me, and we were soon walking about the compound, noting the improvement of the equipment, and meantime talking about everything, from the best plans for the construction of a church or dwelling to the virtues and failings of the Chinese Christians, or the best means of disposing our small forces in order to meet the opportunities which now invite us on every hand.

One Point Where Buddhism Fails

Next morning I took a walk with Mr. Goddard, to a Buddhist monastery on a hill overlooking Ichang. The chief monk is an interesting character, who has been known for years to our Chinese and other workers in the city. He showed us every courtesy we had time to accept, and talked more than I ever before heard a Buddhist talk about Buddhism and other religious teachings. I am sorry to say, however, that he is evidently a confirmed user of opium, and while he admits that the use of opium is hurtful to body and soul, he seems to defend its use on the ground that it does not really reach the heart, and that if the heart is right other matters are indifferent. Or else he takes refuge in the hopelessness of the struggle against such things while the world at large is so degenerate as it is in this evil time. It is in the realm of practical morals, now, as always, that Christianity must be manifested as the Power of God. This fact becomes evident even in a brief talk like ours with this intelligent Buddhist. He took no offence at our plain speaking (we tried, of course, to be courteous with it all), but seemed rather to enjoy the opportunity to converse with foreigners who could exchange ideas with him in his own tongue.

My first confirmation service was held on March 31st in the Ichang church. Mr. Huntington presented the candidates, ten men and two women. The day was stormy, and the congregation was not large, but I can never forget the reverence of the candidates, nor the impressiveness of the words and acts of the service which I was using for the first time. Were not these reverent men and women among the first fruits of the Lord's harvest in this great land, a harvest already plenteous, in the reaping of which we are called to bear no mean part?

With the procrastination and uncertainty characteristic of the up-river steamers, the Tungting, which was to sail Saturday morning at daylight, did not start until Sunday morning. We reached Shasi, a distance of about ninety miles, shortly before one o'clock that afternoon. We have no foreign missionary here, but the Rev. M. P. Kuei, the Chinese priest, was on hand to meet us. The morning congregation, which usually meets between eleven and twelve o'clock, was still waiting for us when we arrived. Mr. Huntington examined the two men who were candidates for confirmation, leaving the six women for Mr. Kuei and his wife to vouch for, since it is not convenient for a man alone to conduct the examination for the women. Then we proceeded with the service, which was held in the new church. I confirmed eight persons at this service, then preached and celebrated the Holy Communion. In the evening I confirmed another man, who had missed the morning service, and Mr. Huntington preached. Here, as elsewhere, it was interesting to see the growing Chinese church, with its wardens and older Christians, and its general toning up all along the line.

What Must be Done for Shasi

I cannot pass over Shasi without mentioning one of our hopes for the future. We must have a hospital there at the earliest possible date, and a residence for a foreign clergyman should be secured as early as next fall. This will mean more expense, of course, for land and houses, and general equipment, as well as for the support of the workers, but we have waited for it a long time, and we should soon make a move in this direction. We need a piece of property adjoining our present lot in the city, for the expansion of our school and other work. Mr. Huntington ought to have all possible help, and I hope with him that we shall soon be able to station one of our foreign clergy at Shasi, to take charge of the growing work there and in the neighboring out-stations.

Leaving Shasi Monday morning we went first to Chinchow, one of our newer out-stations. Chinchow is one of the most important cities in the Province of Hupeh. It is the residence of the Tartar General, who ranks, nominally, even above the Viceroy, as the highest Manchu official in the region. The walls are imposing, and the city bears, on the whole, as to outward appearance at least, a favorable comparison with Wuchang itself. Within the walls there is the Manchu city, occupied almost entirely by the Manchus, who receive a regular allowance from the Imperial Government. It is frequently said that the decay of the Manchu power in China may be reasonably traced in no small measure to this policy of relieving the conquerors of the necessity of earning their daily bread. Certain it is, not only that Chinese civilization has almost completely conquered the Manchus, but that the Manchu initiative and force of character have degenerated fearfully since the days of the early Manchu emperors. The most conspicuous thing to the casual observer, walking, as we did, through the Manchu city, is the dress, especially the foot-gear, of the women. In the neighboring Chinese part of the city, and, in fact, everywhere throughout Central China, almost all the women have bound feet, and consequently, very small shoes—and, also consequently, they walk most awkwardly and painfully. It was an immense relief to see women in the Manchu city with natural feet, walking about their houses as comfortably as foreign women do. These external matters are probably about the same now as they have been for many years. The more important matters of internal feeling, however, have changed immeasurably during the last few years.

THE SACRED TREE AT ICHANG

Worshipped with prayer and incense by the Chinese as a tree inhabited by a divinity

Right-about Face at Chinchow

Mr. Fu, the deacon at Hsinti, told me of his experience when he was sent to open a mission in Chinchow twelve years ago. He was a young man, just out of college, and, together with another catechist, succeeded in renting a place in the city, where there was prospect of success. But the two men had hardly begun their work when the gentry of the place brought a complaint against them before the officials of the city. The officials said that while they could take no open action, they would be glad to see the teachers of foreign doctrine driven out of the city. With this license the gentry paraded the streets, beating a gong and warning all citizens to refrain from renting property to the foreign representatives. Then they went to the landlord and told him that if he did not turn the Christian catechists out of his house they would tear down the place over his head. The landlord and his wife, both over eighty years old, were very favorably disposed to the catechists, whom they seem to have liked on closer acquaintance, but they came to Mr. Fu, prostrated themselves before him—thus adding the greatest emphasis possible to their words, for Fu was but a young man—and begged him to save them by moving away. They had lived laborious lives in the country, as farmers till recently, and had come to the city to spend their last days in peace and comfort. They had just enough money to buy the little property where they were then living, and if it were destroyed now, as was certain if the Christians remained, they would have no redress. Mr. Fu said he could not stand that appeal, and though he would have been willing to undergo whatever hardships might be involved for himself in a riot, he could not bear to see these good old people suffer as they would if he stayed. He therefore moved away, and it was only two years ago that we opened work in Chinchow again. When we arrived—Mr. Huntington, Mr. Kuei and I—we were received most cordially, and there was evidently none of the old feeling of extreme hostility left. Our work has now been pro-had hard times during the last two or three years, but it is encouraging to see that it is now gaining ground again. For nearly a year, even the older Christians, who had originally invited us to come to the place, and had presented the land and house to the Church, would hardly come near us, much less help in the work and life of the Church. It is gressing quietly for two years, and we have recently bought a good place in the city—rather, Mr. Huntington has bought it and given it to the mission.

Chiaowei Difficulties

A walk of half an hour from Chinchow brought us to a small canal which leads on towards Chiaowei. The weather was favorable, so that we were confined in the narrow limits of the boat, where we could only sit down on the floor or the steamer trunk, for a little less than six hours. The Church in Chiaowei has hard to fix the blame for this state of affairs exactly, but there is no doubt that a former catechist, who borrowed money right and left and then did not return it, gave us a bad name which it was not easy to live down. The present catechist is one of my former pupils in the Catechetical School, and he wrote me when he first went to Chiaowei, nearly two years ago, that it was the hardest place he had ever seen. It certainly was then the most discouraging station in the district. He was exhorted to hold on, in faith and good works, and this he did. Good fruit is now beginning to appear. The old Christians have come back, and there are several enquirers and catechumens. I confirmed five men at the service which we held at about half-past nine in the evening. The reason for hastening through with the examination and the service was that the next day was what is called a "hot time," that is, a market day, when the country people come in to trade and barter, and inasmuch as there had not been a good "hot time," that is, fair weather for the market day, for weeks, the next day was likely to be particularly "hot," and it would probably be difficult for many of our people to attend any services.

At Chiaowei we found the Church in possession of a fine piece of ground, quite as large as the original property we own and just along side of it, the piece having been bought by the Christians within the last few weeks. We shall probably never need any more land in Chiaowei itself.

From Chiaowei to Houkang is only a little more than five miles, and we walked that at our leisure the next morning. We were walking along with our coats off and umbrellas up when a detachment of small boys from the Houkang school greeted us on the road. They had outrun their elders, and, though perspiring profusely, made most elaborate bows to us and then took up their positions walking behind us. The road, like almost all roads in the interior, was only a foot wide in most places, and never more than three feet. The country is a rich agricultural region, there being cultivated fields on all sides as far as the eye could reach. Nearly a mile from the town we were met by the main body of welcomers, headed by the catechist, who greeted us most cordially, and at once began to set off fire-crackers in front of us. This was kept up all the way into the town, and at the chapel itself thousands of fire-crackers were set off. They said they used about 50,000 fire-crackers altogether. We have tried to discourage this custom, or at least to abate it, otherwise they would probably have used many more than this number. The work at Houkang seems to be in a very satisfactory condition. Mr. Huntington helped somewhat, but the Christians themselves contributed a very creditable sum toward the purchase of property adjoining our old property in Houkang, and we have just taken possession. It nearly, or quite, doubles the accommodations of our old place, giving ample room for a fair-sized chapel, and also a new schoolroom and living room for the teacher. This teacher is another of the new graduates of the Normal School, and his school promises to be a great help in our work.

Changes for the Better in Houkang

Here, as in most of our present stations, the old hatred of the Church and the foreigner has almost entirely disappeared, in the face of the good example of the Christians as a class, and the general progress of enlightenment in the country at large. It is fine to hear the older Christians speak of the difference between the attitude of the people at large toward them now, as compared with what they had to endure a few years ago. The grade, socially speaking, of our enquirers and catechumens is constantly rising, also. I was much impressed by the conversation of one of the Houkang Christians who talked with me while Mr. Huntington was examining the candidates for baptism and confirmation. He is not an educated man, but he talks like a Christian gentleman all the same. His account of how he met a deputation from his home in one of the eastern provinces, who came all this distance to get him to return and pay his vows in the ancestral hall, showed a gentleness, good judgment and firmness which would be creditable to any one. He said he explained matters to them, how that while he still reverences his ancestors, he cannot longer worship them, for he worships only "The Great Original Ancestor, the Heavenly Father," and so it would be useless for him to return with them to the ancestral hall. They accepted his explanation, he said, and returned in peace.

At the service in the afternoon I confirmed fourteen candidates, ten men and four women. In the evening we had a good talk with the Christians, informally, in the guest room. There are certainly some good men among them, and they took our suggestions for solidifying and pushing forward their work in the Church with a readiness and intelligence which promise well for future growth.

The Shayang Outlook

The next morning we made an early start for Shayang, a distance of seventy li, about twenty-four miles. This time we had to have sedan chairs, and we alternately rode in them and walked, reading while we rode, in spite of the constant jog of the carriers, and talking while we walked. At Shayang, as at all other places I visited on this trip, I found a very hopeful and progressive tone among the Christians. Here, as at Houkang and Chiaowei, the Christians have recently bought a new piece of ground. They are looking forward to the time when they can build a new chapel large enough to accommodate their congregations, which cannot get into the present chapel. I confirmed seven men at the evening service, and soon after Mr. Huntington and a large number of the people escorted me to the small boat that was to take me to Hankow. The friendly crowd, with their lanterns, put their hands together and made me the usual bows of farewell. The cook and I slept side by side on the floor of the boat, and when we awoke next morning I found that we were making about seven miles an hour down stream toward Hankow, the current of the Han River being responsible for five or six of them. The second morning we reached Hankow, having used just two whole days from Shayang, about 250 miles, a journey which frequently takes five days or a week. I had confirmed forty-seven men and women, and altogether the trip was delightful and encouraging.

THE SUNDAY-SCHOOL AT THE NEW BACURANAO MISSION

PROGRESS IN CUBA

PROGRESS is the order of the day in Cuba under Bishop Knight's leadership. New life is being developed all along the line. Church people, recently arrived from the States, and others who have been in the island for some time, are constantly coming forward and offering to do all they can to further the Church's influence. Requests for services at new points reach the bishop much more rapidly than he can respond to them with the limited staff at his command. Prior to the first of January, when Bishop Knight reached the island, services were held regularly at five points and occasionally at five others. Now regular services are being held at twelve stations and at six others occasionally. The Sunday-school enrolment has almost doubled, and is now nearly 300. The communicants likewise have increased from 227 to 417, "with several districts missing," as the newspapers say at election time.

A new mission has just been started at a little place called Bacuranao, about ten miles from Havana. It is reached by ferry, rail and guagua. This latter is an omnibus, supposed to carry ten people, but on the day of the opening of the mission it had its usual Sunday crowd of about twenty-five. On one side sat Mr. Frazer with the altar cross in his lap, which he was taking over to the chapel, and opposite him sat a Cuban with two fighting cocks in his arms.

Bacuranao is the centre of quite a large population, all Cubans, with the exception of one family. There is no religious work going on here, and the nearest church of any sort is a Roman one, about five miles distant. The resident Churchman, feeling the great need of some sort of moral influence here, has offered the use of a house on his place as a chapel. It is a regular Cuban house with no floor. Money was raised in Havana with which to lay the floor and make the house churchly.

The first session of the Sunday-school was held on May 21st by Mr. Frazer and

Mr. Peña, the two lay-readers of Jesus del Monte. The school was conducted, of course, entirely in Spanish. Forty-two persons were present, and twenty-eight children were enrolled as regular pupils of the school. Regular services will begin there at once, under the direction of the archdeacon.

One great and crying need of the Church in Cuba is a good translation of the Church Hymnal into Spanish. As it is, we have to sift out a "non-sectarian" hymnal, and use what we can of the hymns found there. It is easy to see what limitations this places on what should be a strong arm of the Church.

WAYS AND MEANS

SOME THINGS THE EDITOR SEES AND HEARS

MAKE THE MAGAZINE KNOWN

THIS was the message on the back of a postal card reaching the Church Missions House the other day:

I wish to subscribe to THE SPIRIT OF MISSIONS, but don't know the exact address. Will you let me know, and if subscription price is $1.00 per year?

The writer lives in a town where there are two flourishing parishes and two branches of the Woman's Auxiliary. I am afraid that there are a good many other Church people whose knowledge of THE SPIRIT OF MISSIONS is quite as hazy as that of this correspondent. Perhaps one might go even further and say that they are much less well informed, because many of them do not even know that there is a SPIRIT OF MISSIONS. How shall this condition be remedied? A little personal effort on the part of those who are already reading the magazine would work wonders. Why not try during July to write just one letter to some friend who is not a subscriber, calling attention to the magazine and recommending that your friend enroll?

A CHANCE TO FORM A VALUABLE PARTNERSHIP

HERE is a suggestive inquiry from a Virginia Churchwoman:

I have about $200 a year I usually give to missions, and I have been anxious to get some one to join me and send a Bible-woman or missionary into the field, and thought perhaps you might suggest through THE SPIRIT OF MISSIONS to some one else to join in with me.

Will anybody accept this opportunity to go into a missionary partnership? The woman missionaries sent from this country receive as stipend $550 a year for the first three years. Then the amount gradually rises until after sixteen years it reaches $900 a year. Beyond that it does not advance. This is simply by way of explanation. For the present $550 a year will provide a personal representative in the mission field. Does anyone wish further information?

THE INDIVIDUAL APPORTIONMENT

IT may mean a good deal of careful thought and some work for the rector, but it will accomplish real results. Here is a letter from a Western New York clergyman:

I have just mailed the final instalment of our apportionment, making it complete. You desired to know, and so I rejoice to tell, that the method of Individual Apportionment has succeeded admirably—so far as I know not a thought of presumption. Almost everyone gladly gave the sum suggested, in most cases being surprised that it was so small. A few persons gave more than asked for and only two or three gave less.

Such a plan as this is particularly adapted to a parish of 200 or 300 communicants. Such a parish represents what might be called the average congregation in the Church. A study of the tables of contributions seems to indicate that it is the average parish which fails most frequently to give the full amount of its apportionment. True, there are notable and inspiring exceptions to such a statement. Leaflet No. 982 tells about "Some Methods for Raising the Apportionment That Have Passed the Test of Experience." A postal to the "Publication Department," 281 Fourth Avenue, New York, will secure a copy.

"THE CHURCH MISSIONS HOUSE HABIT"

"I AM trying to get the members of my branch," said a Junior Auxiliary leader the other day, "into the Church Missions House habit." When asked what that meant, she replied: "I mean the habit of thinking of the Church Missions House as a place where information of all kinds concerning missions can be obtained, and to which they may accordingly write with a reasonable expectation of receiving promptly the help they need."

It is pleasant to find this kind of confidence in the Church Missions House, and the secretaries want to do everything in their power to justify it. They echo heartily the desire of this Junior leader that people everywhere, not juniors only, not members of the Woman's Auxiliary only, but everyone who is interested and wants to help, shall form "the Church Missions House habit." If you want help about some matter of real interest and value; if you have some really puzzling difficulty, the solution of which would help forward the missionary cause, let the Church Missions House try to help you.

BREAKING RECORDS

THIS good news I am sure could be duplicated in other parishes:

You will rejoice to know that the largest collection for foreign missions ever taken in St. Andrew's Church was that of last Sunday—an increase of about 25 per cent. above last year's offering.

It would be interesting to hear of some other "largest offerings."

THE GOOD AND THE BEST

THERE are two ways of renewing a subscription for THE SPIRIT OF MISSIONS. A good way is to send the amount due just as quickly as possible after notice of the expiration of the subscription has come to hand. Some of our friends might improve a little in this respect.

The best way, however, is that adopted by the layman who writes:

Enclosed find check for renewal of my subscription and two new subscriptions to be sent to ..... and ..... I hope to be able to send other subscriptions later, as I believe that every layman should be a subscriber.

How many others will follow this best plan?

CAPITAL!

HERE is a practical suggestion from a summer home in Connecticut, where missionary interests are never forgotten in the midst of holiday pleasures.

A mite-box or a copy of THE SPIRIT OF MISSIONS in each guest room in a country house, is one means of reaching people, who often have nothing to read when in their rooms.

Who will act upon this suggestion this summer? For that matter, this is not merely a summer suggestion. It would apply just as well to the guest room of a city home. Write me for mite-boxes and copies of the magazine. No charge.

ARCHDEACON STUCK'S FARTHEST NORTH. A BLEAK REGION ON THE HAMMOND RIVER

HOW THE CHURCH WENT TO THE MOST NORTHERLY GOLD FIELDS IN THE WORLD

The article in the June number told of Archdeacon Stuck's visit to some of the Yukon River missions. From Fort Yukon he pushed out to the northwest, beyond the Arctic Circle, for the Koyukuk gold fields. Coldfoot, 250 miles away, was his goal. The following passages from his letters to the Church Missions House tell something of the experiences of that journey:

PERILOUS DAYS AND NIGHTS

AFTER a hard journey of fifteen days from Fort Yukon, we reached Coldfoot February 21st. The latter part of the journey piled troubles upon us. The snowdrifts increased the farther we penetrated into the mountains. On the divide between the Chandalar River and the South Fork of the Koyukuk—in a barren, treeless region—we were overtaken by the worst wind storm that I have ever known. The mail trail is marked here by stakes, and the stakes were soon blown down and covered. The furious gale gathered up the snow and drove it ahead until nothing could be seen anywhere but the flying flakes. We lost the trail, and could do nothing with the dogs; their eyes were filled and crusted, their whole faces were cased, with the wind-hardened snow. It became necessary to seek for shelter at once. So, leaving all thought of the trail, we made for the nearest timber, about a mile away, and there felled some scrub spruce, dug out a snowbank with our snowshoes, and constructed a Siwash camp. In that camp we lay two days and two nights, the gale continuing unabated all that time. In that forty-eight hours we cooked only twice, for a fire was an added misery, the wind blowing the smoke into nose and eyes and mouth, and scattering embers upon our bedding. And we had little to cook: a handful of rice, sweetened with some maple syrup; a pot of tea, sweetened with the same, and both thickly sprinkled with sparks and embers of charred wood, was all we had during that time. We had taken provisions for ten days, and they were at an end. So we crept back into our bed and snuggled as close together as possible for warmth—my Indian and I—and the snow sifted and drifted into the bedding in spite of all precautions. Fortunately, it was not cold. Ten degrees below zero was the minimum during that period. But the wind stabbed like a knife, and chilled to the bone in a few minutes. The morning of the third day the wind began to subside. We dug out our sled—completely buried in the drift—and hitched up, and after hunting for two hours and a half we found the trail. Imagine our joy that afternoon when we met the mail carrier and two other sleds—five people in all—the first white people we had seen for two weeks.

delicious his ham and bread tasted—for he had put all he had at our disposal. But now we were actually at Coldfoot—and I felt that it was worth while. Here was a store, and a couple of dozen cabins, and a post-office, and actually—think of it!—a bath-tub.

COLDFOOT'S FIRST RELIGIOUS SERVICE

I gathered together the inhabitants and held the first religious service of any kind ever held in Coldfoot. The town was started in 1900 and had its boom in 1901, with five saloons, and

ARCHDEACON STUCK'S CONGREGATION AT NOLAN CREEK

Two days after that we reached Coldfoot, and I was never so glad to get anywhere in my life. The little village in its setting of sharp white peaks seemed like the promised land. We had really been in some peril during the storm, and some privation. We were forty or fifty miles north of the Arctic Circle, off the trail in a black, treeless waste. I was quite weak from exposure and lack of food the day we left our shelter, and I shall never forget how supremely comfortable the mail carrier's little cabin seemed that night though one could hardly stand upright in it, and how gamblers and the usual accompaniments of a prosperous mining camp, but no minister of religion of any description ever reached here before. And now the town has dwindled again to the size that the actual diggings demand, and boasts only one saloon. Twelve men and two women turned out to the service and that was the whole population, save a sprinkling of natives, who were also in attendance. I baptized three babies at that service.

Learning that Nolan Creek was the most populous diggings in the district, I started out next day for that place, twenty-three miles north of Coldfoot. The trail lay along the middle fork of the Koyukuk, until within sight of the confluence of the Hammond River with that stream, when it turns up Wiseman Creek, of which Nolan is a tributary. Here I found between fifty and sixty men actively engaged in mining operations, and here some very rich ground is being uncovered.

The Koyukuk gold field is the most northerly gold field in the world, and the diggings on Nolan Creek are the most northerly diggings of any extent in the district. The four-ton boiler on Nolan Creek is "the most northerly boiler in the world," as its owner proudly asserts, and it is thawing and hoisting some of the "best dirt in Alaska," as he declares with still more pride. Nothing could exceed the cordiality with which I was received by everybody. I spent Sunday there, and every man knocked off work, though I am afraid this is not the general custom, and we had a cabin so crowded with men for the service that I was jammed up against the stove and decidedly hampered in the way of gesture. I never preached to a more attentive or more appreciative congregation. I told them that they could not go so far north that the Church could not find them, to declare in their ears once more the Law and the Gospel; that righteousness and love were the only conditions of happy life in the Arctic solitudes as well as in the fertile valleys they had left behind them; that the Kingdom of God and His Christ stretched from pole to pole; that the only condemnation God could pronounce against His children was summed up in the words, "Light has come into the world, and men love darkness rather than light."

I shall never forget that visit. I shall never forget that gathering of men from almost every civilized nation on earth. I shall never forget their warm-hearted and respectful demeanor, their perfect willingness to listen and heed, the vigor with which they sang the first verse of "Jesus, Lover of my Soul," their reverent behavior throughout. That service was worth the long, weary journey, walking every step of the way, half the time on snowshoes, worth the storm and the Siwash camp and the short rations.

ACROSS COUNTRY TO THE YUKON

From Coldfoot we journeyed to Bettles, sixty-five miles southwest, where we found another small and lonely group of miners. In order to avoid the trip back to Coldfoot and the retracing of our steps over the long and weary Chandalar Trail to Fort Yukon, I decided to take the chances of the cross country trip, through the dangerous Dall River region to Fort Hamlin on the Yukon. It was a very hard trip on the Koyukuk side, for the snow lies deep in that country. We had to beat and cut a trail through four feet of snow and brush for the first fifty miles. The weather was very warm; for the first four days the thermometer stood at about 25° above zero, and this made the snow soft and mushy, and it clung to snowshoes and toboggan and made our trip harder still. My Koyukuk guide would go first, clearing brush and beating down snow; I came next, passing back and forth between him and the sled two or three times, and then Charley and the dogs were able to come along. After a week of hard travel we reached the Yukon again—the great Alaskan highway.

I shall always remember that trip to the Koyukuk country with keen satisfaction. My voice had been the first voice that ever preached the Gospel or conducted divine service in that region. And the welcome I received, the open-handed hospitality I enjoyed, the interest which my ministrations aroused, would have been gratifying to anyone. I preached five times, twice to Indians and three times to white people—and each time to every one living at the place. I baptized five children—two whites and three natives, reconciled one man and his wife who had separated, and met more than half, I think, of the 179 men who this winter are mining in that district. At Bettles my kind hostess, Mrs.

Grimm, told me the men I had preached to were mortified at my going out of the country without their making up a purse for me; that their "pokes" were empty now, but they had collected $25 and wanted me to take it; that if I would come back when their pokes were full, in the spring, they would show their appreciation of my long journey to visit them. I told her I did not come for money, but I accepted their $25 with as much pleasure as though it had been $2,500, and I took the little bag of gold dust with the feeling that I would keep it as a memento of a very happy time.

on all sorts of questions during the long winter nights in their cabins; soft-hearted, kindly men, always ready to help or succor; and though not devout men, I judge, yet men with the fear of God down in their hearts, I do believe, and a real respect for high things and holy things, I am sure. I fell in love with the men on the Koyukuk. I settled one question which had been agitating Nolan Creek all the winter: "Was the country 'Spain' mentioned in the Bible?" It had been debated pro and con on almost every claim. And I was greatly amused at the satisfaction which

THE TRAIL THROUGH THE DALL RIVER GAP

THE MEN OF THE KOYUKUK

I cannot speak too highly of the men I met on the Koyukuk. Rough, careless miners, making light of their toils and privations—making songs about them and singing them in chorus to a guitar and a violin at their Saturday night gatherings; taking as a matter of course hardships that men "outside" would shudder at, working on year after year for no more than a "grub-stake," but with the light of hope always in their eyes; keen, eager men, alert on all questions of science and politics, maintaining great arguments with one another shone on several faces when I assured them that St. Paul in his Epistle to the Romans says he desires to go unto Spain.

I was much moved by what I saw of the condition of the Koyukuk Indians. They are the only Indians in Alaska on whose behalf no missionary work has ever been undertaken. I preached to about forty of them, about one-fourth of the whole remaining number, for they are a diminishing race. Some of them came to me afterward and begged that they might be taught; said that their "ears were stopped and eyes shut" so that they could not understand what I had preached; that they had never been taught anything at all!

THE MEETING OF THE BOARD OF MISSIONS

JUNE 13th, 1905

THE Board of Missions met at the Church Missions House on Tuesday, June 13th. The following members were present: The Bishops of Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Pittsburgh, Rhode Island, Indianapolis, Long Island and Newark; the Bishop Coadjutor of New York; the Rev. Drs. Huntington, Anstice, Alsop, Perry and Smith; and Messrs. Low, Mills, Ryerson, Thomas, and Capt. Mahan, and Messrs. Gardner, Butler and Morris. The Bishops of North Carolina, Porto Rico, Mexico and Cuba, honorary members, were also present, and the Rev. Dr. Rufus W. Clark, Department Secretary. The Bishop of New Jersey was called to the chair.

The Treasurer reported that there was an increase in the total contributions, including the Sunday-school Lenten Offerings to June 1st (adjusted by the number of days after Easter), of $56,071.69 as compared with June 1st of last year. The receipts from Sunday-schools, brought down to the day of the meeting, were very nearly $100,000. In noting this the Board adopted the following resolution:

Resolved: That the Board of Missions gratefully acknowledges the Sunday-school offerings of very nearly $100,000 to June 12th, representing that far an advance above the amounts received in any former years. The Board records upon its minutes its fullest appreciation of these offerings and recognizes in the missionary enthusiasm of the Sunday-schools, one of the best signs of promise for the Church's missionary endeavor.

The Treasurer furthermore reported that there had been a cash settlement with the American Church Missionary Society under the recent agreement between the two societies with regard to the foreign missionary work of the former in Cuba and Brazil; the amount of money received being in accordance with the resolutions of the former Society adopted January 23d last, and the Treasurer added that so soon as the books were audited and the securities had been turned over he would assume the position as proposed, as Treasurer of The American Church Missionary Society. Immediately after, the agreement between the two societies in the form of a legal instrument which had already been executed on the part of the American Church Missionary Society was read in full and ordered to be executed by the proper officers, which was done.

The Board was formally notified of the election of the Rev. Frederick Foote Johnson to be a missionary bishop to assist the Bishop of South Dakota.

A letter was submitted from the Bishop of West Virginia informing the Board that, at the recent session of the council of the diocese, a resolution was adopted relieving the general Church of any further appropriation for work in that diocese—save that for work among the Negroes and from the Woman's Auxiliary United Offering—from and after September 1st next. A message of congratulation and hearty appreciation on behalf of the members of the Board was extended to the Bishop of West Virginia and to his diocese upon the occasion of this step forward in relinquishing any outside appropriations for ordinary domestic missionary work. [Since the meeting a despatch has been received from the Bishop of Marquette that his tenth annual convention unanimously surrendered appropriations to the diocese after September 1st.]

Letters were received from many of the domestic bishops having missionary work within their jurisdictions, and action was taken by the Board to facilitate their wishes, both with regard to the present and coming fiscal year. All the women at present at work in the domestic field, supported by the Woman's Auxiliary United Offering, were reappointed for the coming fiscal year, in addition to which the following new appointments were made: Miss Isabel S. White, to fill a vacancy in Oklahoma, Miss Caroline Nosler, deaconess, to fill a vacancy in Spokane, Miss Emma Johnson for Duluth.

At the request of the bishop the appropriation already made to the Diocese of Minnesota for the next fiscal year was changed so that it would apply only to Swedish and Indian work and work among the Negroes, leaving all the Anglo-Saxon work to be supported by the diocese.

Appropriations were made for work among the Negroes, with one exception, in the same amounts respectively as the existing appropriations.

The Bishop of Porto Rico advised the Board that he had found it necessary to add to the church building at Vieques, at an expense of about $2,000, to accommodate the members of the church.

Letters were received from the several bishops in the foreign field.

Appropriation, omitted at the last meeting for lack of an estimate, was made for the next fiscal year to the Shanghai District according to the bishop's asking; the items of increase being principally because of larger salaries, by reason of term of service, which are under contract with the missionaries.

The Alumni Association of the Episcopal Theological School, Cambridge, has undertaken for the period of three years to provide the salary of two men, alumni of the school, working under Bishop Roots in the District of Hankow. The Board gratefully received this offer.

From Cape Palmas the Board was advised that the interior station, which is supported, at a cost of $700 annually, by St. Mark's Parish, Harper, the Rev. G. W. Gibson, Jr., rector, is in a most healthful condition. They have nearly completed the building of the mission house. They have twelve boarding pupils, four have been baptized and three others will soon receive that sacrament. Besides which an old man has been won over to Christianity by Mr. Brooks, the teacher.

The Bishop of Haiti reported that he had just completed a visitation in the mountains of Leogane, during which journey he dedicated a new chapel at Des Landes and confirmed eleven persons.

A letter from the Bishop of Brazil gives information that since his return to the field after the General Convention he has confirmed nearly one hundred candidates, and on the 26th of March he ordered four priests. There are at present ten theological students, doing most creditable work.

The Bishop of Cuba stated to the Board that the Presiding Bishop had placed in his charge the work in the Isle of Pines, which was not included by the General Convention in the District of Cuba. Services are held at four points, at two of which there are chapels and the Rev. W. W. Steel, Archdeacon of Havana, gives about half his time to this work, which is technically domestic missions, as it is under the United States flag. Bishop Knight, making a statement before the Board, gave it reason to expect that of the $15,900 appropriated to his district for the next fiscal year, at least $2,000 would be returned to the treasury from the congregation in Cuba and from the Cuban Guild of Philadelphia.

The Board's Committee on Missionary Meetings, in conference with the District Secretaries, have arranged for department missionary conferences to be held in October and November. Details concerning these will be published hereafter. The Rev. Dr. Clark, Department Secretary of the Fifth Missionary Department, addressed the Board upon his experiences, especially dwelling upon the Laymen's Forward Movement in the Middle West.

The Special Committee appointed in May to make careful investigation and to ascertain if any retrenchment is advisable with respect to the matter of central expenses, reported as follows:

The Special Committee "appointed to make careful investigation and ascertain if any retrenchment is advisable, in their judgment, with respect to the matter of central expenses," met May 18th, at the Church Missions House; present, the Rev. Drs. Huntington, Vibbert, Storrs and Anstice, and Messrs. Mills, Mansfield and Morris.

A large mass of detailed figures and facts which had been prepared to facilitate the work of the committee at the instance of several of its members, was presented and fully considered.

The conclusion reached by the Committee is expressed in the following preamble and resolution:

"Forasmuch as an accurate comparison of the central expenses of the leading missionary societies of English-speaking Christendom with those of our own has disclosed the fact that the administrative costs of the Domestic and Foreign Missionary Society of the Protestant Episcopal Church stand to the aggregate receipts of the said society in a smaller ratio than appears in the case of any other similar society, and whereas, a careful investigation of the details of our own executive methods has brought to light no instance of excessive outlay, therefore,

"Resolved: That the Committee be discharged from the further consideration of the subject."

A SMALL boy appeared at a country dispensary in China and asked for medicine for his mother, his uncle, and himself. "What is the matter with you all?" asked the missionary doctor. For answer his coat was unfastened, and marks made with Chinese ink were seen on different parts of his little body. "My mother has a pain here," he explained carefully, pointing to one mark; "my uncle has a pain here, and I have a pain here,"—Mercy and Truth.

THE WOMAN'S AUXILIARY.

To the Board of Missions

A SECRETARY'S EXPERIENCES

A VISIT to the domestic mission field of the Church is always calculated to send the Secretary of the Woman's Auxiliary home a courageous and grateful woman. So much kindness as is invariably shown her by bishops and missionaries reminds her afresh of the tie knit many years ago and which the intervening years have drawn only closer. In the varied interests and activities of to-day, among which the missionary box has slipped into the quiet matter of course of the year's routine, one is liable to forget that it may yet be a valued factor. So to spend a fortnight among those to whom its coming is still one of the year's events, and to whom its failure to meet expectation is not only disappointment but actual loss, brings one face to face with the value of old and long continued method. At the same time, while the missionary speaks of gratitude, the Secretary feels the term to be misplaced, and that she must be the mouth-piece for the whole Auxiliary in expressing their gratitude in being allowed to put such gifts as these beside the missionary's gift of a daily service of life and a tried devotion. And when she hears of boxes even now sent, which are worse than useless, she has no words to express the regret of the Auxiliary that some of its members should still be blundering along in the most elementary classes of the missionary school, without having learned the principle upon which the simplest offering should be made.

In Iowa, with its 56,000 miles of territory and 64 clergy of the Church working at 94 points; in Minnesota, with 102 men at work in 132 parishes and missions in its range of 26,000 miles; in North Dakota, stretching over 75,000 miles, with 47 parishes and missions manned by 21 men, the lesson was plain to read of a courageous faith venturing against great odds. And as one listened to the Bishop of Iowa pleading for the deepening of the spiritual life of the individual, and the Bishop of Minnesota urging the strengthening of the centres, and the Bishop of North Dakota calling for men as the first and foremost appliance with which to attack the problem of his prairie diocese, one felt the force of each argument in turn, and wished for each bishop the fulfilment of his hopes.

But not only by the sight of the missionary is the Secretary cheered as she journeys; she has a chance, too, to get within the inner circle of that work to which the missionary gives himself. A day spent in All Saints' School, Sioux Falls, carries one back to the time when, after twelve years given to his Indians alone, the Church allowed the white people to share the blessings of the ministries of Bishop Hare. How many names those stone walls recall to the friend of thirty years; from that of Mrs. Astor, whose gracious gifts made cathedral and school both possible, to hers who in these latest days has gathered the fund together for endowment which shall bring perpetual help.

It was sweet to see the school made a home for the children of the South Dakota clergy, white and Indian both; to see the daughter of our Indian priest at Standing Rock at the organ of the cathedral; to kneel with the household in the chapel, which recalls the sacred memories of one of Philadelphia's most hospitable homes, and to sing the Friday morning Litany hymn; to see the brave effort being made to give in the school a complete equipment that shall make each girl going from its walls a centre of Christian intelligence and usefulness in the community to which she goes.

MRS. GOOD THUNDER

And again, in what more congenial place could a visiting secretary spend a Sunday, than in an Indian mission? On the hill above the town of Morton, Minn., stand two tall shafts, one raised in memory of the white women and children slain in the Indian massacre of 1862, the other in honor of the friendly Indians who tried to avert the catastrophe. Among these was Good Thunder, who, driven back to his old haunts by homesickness, bought back eighty acres at Birch Coulee. The story has often been told of his first desire that Bishop Whipple should accept twenty of these acres, on which to build a church, and his cross-marked grave stands to-day in the shadow of the church that was built. The church, the rectory, the mission house and the government school form a group of buildings in which the interests of the reservation centre. They stand on the open prairie, where in the early spring morning the sweetest flowers sprang thick under one's feet. Across it, as the bell for service rang, the worshippers began to gather—Mrs. Good Thunder, with her blanket over her head and her cane in her hand, and another huge figure of a woman with her little granddaughter, like a small tow-boat by a big steamer, at her side. The old woman would hobble a few steps along, and then sit down to rest; then with great exertion, hands and feet on ground, she would raise herself and take a few steps farther on. Beside these survivors of an earlier day one found in the church the slim, erect figures of younger women, neatly dressed, with their husbands and little ones beside them. And how reverent and hearty the service, led by the Indian priest, one of those living examples of what one means by missions, when one thinks of him as the next generation to that little boy with cheeks adorned with circles of brilliant paint, wrapped in a blanket, with a feather in his hair, who sat on the chancel steps and watched the Bishop of Minnesota throughout the first service which he held in Faribault.

And then—third cheering ingredient of an Auxiliary secretary's journeyings—the cordial welcomes, the hospitable care, the quick comprehension, the complete co-operation of the workers in the Woman's Auxiliary.

As at Birch Coulee, the vice-president of the auxiliary reported the work of the women there, and the little helpers of the Babies' Branch listened with absorbed attention to the story of baby girls in China; as from Prairie Island, the women and children came fifteen miles to Red Wing, bringing quilts to show how they managed to have something to give for missions; so, at Cleveland and Sioux City, at St. Paul and Minneapolis and Fargo, one met women who, in the different difficulties of town and country life, among the distractions and illusions of wealth, and the anxieties and absorptions of poverty, are going on in the serene certainty that, in looking beyond things seen to the accomplishment here and now of things unseen as yet, they have chosen a good part which shall not be taken from them.

WHAT ONE MISSIONARY FINDS TO DO IN NORTH DAKOTA

A YEAR ago Wahpeton, Hankinson and Ledgerwood were the only towns in the southeastern mission field, which embraces four counties, where Prayer Book services were being held. Now there are twenty where we have services, at least occasionally, in schoolrooms, lodge rooms, and churches rented from Methodists and Presbyterians. In Wahpeton we have the only church and rectory belonging to us.

To give these services—491 in number—throughout the past year, I have travelled about 900 miles, by railroad chiefly; I have baptized thirty-six persons, most of them as persons of riper years, although not all adults, have prepared and presented fourteen for confirmation, have discovered and received into the communion of the Church over seventy more confirmed persons.

You will readily understand that most of our own people are scattered. In very few places are there more than two or three communicants, in some only one, in others none; but in almost every place we have been able to begin and continue our services, and in some most unlikely places to have baptisms, and in one place at least we have now what appears to be a flourishing Sunday-school. I have found a real desire for the services and sacraments of the Church, and a devout reception of the same, with expressions of gratitude that the Church had come after many years. Some who have received the Holy Communion this year had not had an opportunity for as many as thirty years. Some adults who have been baptized, who never before realized, or had been properly taught, "the necessity of this sacrament where it may be had," are now rejoicing that having heard the Gospel of the Kingdom they have been received into the family and Kingdom of God's Son.

A few years ago I had the privilege of baptizing two women and two children in a schoolhouse. It was a touching sight to see them kneel in the presence of thirty or forty people to receive that sacrament. A few days afterward these two women took a journey of forty miles, starting at four o'clock in the morning, in order to be confirmed by the Bishop of North Dakota. A few months ago I travelled one hundred miles by railroad, stage and on foot to a remote farmhouse, where I found a family of ten persons, of whom the parents were the only baptized persons; the father had been confirmed. After instruction, explanation, exhortation, the whole family of eight children desired to be baptized. A week ago I baptized three as persons of riper years at Ashley, nearly two hundred miles from here. I had been teaching, persuading for months, during many visits, and at last they were received.

Many of the people are showing their appreciation of what the Church is doing for them by giving to missions. For example, several items referred to by the secretary of the North Dakota Sunday-school Commission in his last report have an interesting history. One item, $7 from Fullerton, came from a class of children, eight of whom I baptized, some of whom are prepared for confirmation. I do not suppose they had ever heard of the Episcopal Church in North Dakota six months ago, and had never before seen one of our pyramids. Some of the money was earned by the boys from "gopher tail bounties," and other items on the list were equally interesting. One gift was from a girl who has learned nearly the whole Church Catechism, but has never been inside one of our churches; in fact, that is the case with the majority, and whether they ever will or not is questionable.

I could tell some pathetic stories of the solemn joy that has been manifested as I have given the Blessed Sacrament of the Body and Blood in remote places with extemporized altars, and the hearty thanks offered up for the blessed privilege. Suffice to say, that although at times and in some places there seem but little response and few results, yet, on the whole, by constant perseverance and earnest continuance in doing what we believe to be the work we ought to do in obedience to the command of our Blessed Lord, the reward comes in souls new born, in imparting the spiritual gifts to the scattered flock of the Good Shepherd.

ST. PETER'S MISSION CHAPEL

ST. PETER'S MISSION, SALT LAKE

BY SARA NAPPER

ST. PETER'S mission chapel is situated in the northwestern part of the city, among an old-time Mormon population, from whom we occasionally get a Sunday-school scholar. Six or seven years ago it was moved to its present site from St.

Mark's Hospital where a chapel had been erected in the new wing. The removal cracked the plaster badly, and as time went on the cracks and dilapidation were more evident. This year the G. F. S. members determined to hold a sale to get some money toward the renovation. They were more successful than they had dared to hope, and they have $44 to give to the restoration fund.

Five of the girls were confirmed in St. Mark's Cathedral on Palm Sunday. On the Wednesday following, at the guild meeting, one of the mothers said: "I cried last Sunday morning during the whole of the service; I could not help it, I was so happy among my old friends—it seemed like Heaven." She went on to tell me that twenty-two years before she was confirmed in Scotland; but her grandmother, turning Mormon, brought the whole family to Utah and into that belief. This woman has not attended any of their meetings for a long time, and now she says, "I want to be restored to the Church." We had also a married woman baptized and confirmed, who had as a child been brought up as a Mormon.

We had a most delightful and instructive time at the missionary conference just held here. The last meeting was held at the theatre on Sunday night, when the "Church's Heritage" (Bishop Nichols), "Faith" (Bishop Moreland), and "Mission" (Bishop Spalding), were placed fairly and eloquently before the large audience. The first subject was particularly needed here, as the Mormons teach that "the Gospel perished from the earth," and hence the need for a new revelation, and so they always speak of their belief as "The Gospel."

A SEASON'S LETTERS FROM ICHANG

IN the January number we printed an article by Miss Huntington, telling of her work with women and girls at the Ichang station. In a later letter Miss Huntington is able to report the good news that, through the kindness of personal friends, she has been able to add a room for woman's work to the equipment of the mission. In the accompanying illustration we may see her forewoman, Miss Liu, with a class of women whom she is teaching to crochet.

Miss Huntington writes, in November, 1904:

I began the industrial work because Mr. Tseng thought it might be a means of attracting the women, and it is proving so. At first I thought twenty a good meeting, last Thursday I counted over fifty women and half-grown girls, besides toddlers and babies in arms. Most of the girls are from the street close by, on which our compound opens. Young girls with bound feet cannot go far in a Chinese city. The piece de résistance of the meeting is my telling as vividly as I can of one of our Lord's miracles, with all the detail which we know there must have been, describing, for instance, the lame and blind and withered, in the crowds which gathered about the door. We have now added to that a very short teaching by Mr. Tseng, on the Lord's Prayer. Of course, there is prayer to open the meeting, and there is a picture of the event to show, and the account of the miracle in the Gospel read very slowly and clearly afterwards, with prayers at the close. I hope they may be brought to know Jesus Christ, by knowing what He did. I think I shall then tell them about the circumstances of His Birth, and after Christmas use some parables as well as miracles.

Almost the first stranger whom curiosity led to the room was a bright little girl of twelve, from the street near by. I call her in my own mind "Little Rat," she is such a thin, quick-moving little thing, with bright little black eyes. Miss Liu has taught her to crochet, also to read a little; she can read the first primer, and is now some pages into the second; and a good many other girls, some older, have followed her in. But I cannot teach them as I should like to. Miss Liu and I are somewhat overwhelmed with the numbers. I have to spend all the time I can get, laying out work and making patterns. Of course all do not want work, but to have thirty or forty pile in upon you to be employed and taught is enough of an avalanche! I wish I had some one with sufficient command of the language to help by teaching reading, but, perhaps "Little Rat" ought to be able to teach the other girls what she has herself learned. Then there are three women whom I know, who can read; one, to be sure, only a little, but perhaps, by trying, I could make them teach a little on Thursdays, after the meeting, if any women wish to learn.

My women make point lace and crochet, and work doyleys and tea-cloths, centrepieces in cross-stitch and bow-stitch, with blue thread on white Chinese cloth; the children crochet lace for doyl-leys or lace by the yard. I have to do something to all of it to make it marketable, put it to rights as it were. I pay my forewoman a small salary, and I buy the materials which really count up considerably, and I pay them what is good wages for Chinese women, so I must sell the things when they are done.

Chinese New Year vacation is almost over, and my Thursday meeting opened last week, with an attendance of thirty-three of an age to understand, and some infants, but, on account of the severe cold, not so many as we sometimes have, which I was glad of, as they do make a good deal of disturbance. They are generally such pretty little black-eyed creatures, and of course I would rather have some disturbance than have the mothers stay away. The women I have here on Thursdays are mostly young married women and half-grown girls. On Tuesdays the meeting at the chapel is the girls' school and, mostly, old women who have not eyesight enough left to do needlework. The girls' school closed with twenty girls, so that the two meetings together will average an attendance of over fifty. Of course, I cannot judge of how much they are getting, but they all look interested and none of them go to sleep; as I talk, I meet their eyes, which is a sign of attention. The school reopens to-morrow. Some of the children from the Chinese street, close by our gate, wish to learn to read, and I have had to raise the wages of my forewoman, that she may try teaching them. She thinks there will be a class of perhaps half a dozen. It is too far for them to go to our girls' school in the city. I do not wish to open another girls' school, we have all the work, and more, than we can attend to now, but if Chinese girls wish to learn to read, and their parents do not object, one must try to arrange to have them taught.

"Little Rat," of whom I wrote in an earlier letter, was very interesting, and learned quickly both reading and crochet, and as her father was dead and her mother blind, I thought the money

she would get for the crochet work would probably keep her. But she was just the one whom it did not. When her family found she was getting Christian teaching they forbade her coming. She did creep in to the meeting once or twice after that, but I presume they found it out and stopped it, as I have not seen her since, except as she may be on the street when I am going up to the chapel. The industrial work is a feature that I find often rather puzzling. There is no established market for the wares as yet, and of course it is rather difficult at this distance to know what to make. But I just go on, though sometimes it seems as if I should come to financial ruin—indeed, I am a good deal behindhand, for the wages and materials do mount up, but I have just sent quite a number of things home, and if they go safely, and are sold, it will be quite a help.

I have better news to tell of "Little Rat," who was withdrawn for fear she might become a Christian. Of course, the primer we use contains the plainest, most open Christian teaching. It begins with the characters for God, and for Jesus Christ, and says that Jesus Christ came to the world to save men. Then it gives the shortest, simplest account of some miracles, somewhat in this way: "A blind man besought Jesus Christ for help, and Jesus touched his eyes, and they were cured, and he could see." So nobody need let their children come if they disapprove of the doctrine, and evidently some one in "Little Rat's" connection did. Twice, however, she and her little sister (who looks just like her, only smaller and even more peaked and rattier) crept into the very back of the room after the meeting had begun, and ran away the moment it was over. I think she probably wanted to see the pictures. Thus far we have always been able to have a picture, usually more than one, illustrating different points of the same miracle; as, for instance, the "Raising of Lazarus," where one picture is of Christ speaking into the blackness of the cave, and the tall white figure of Lazarus coming from the darkness, and the second where he has reached the mouth of the cave and Martha is passionately stripping off the grave-clothes, Jesus looking on. Pictures are the greatest help. I have almost all Wilde's Scripture pictures, one cent unmounted, five cents each mounted. Mine are mounted, and after the telling of the story, we call some child or some woman out of the audience, point out the special detail of the picture, and then sit down and watch her take it round and show it and explain it to each one present, singly or in groups. Both women and children love to do that—they think it is an honor to be chosen. Well, "Little Rat" came no more. I usually saw her on the street, for she lives about a stone's throw from our gate, when I was starting in my chair for my meeting in the city, and she would look up, all one brilliant smile, and speak to me. But last Thursday, much to my surprise, there were "Little Rat" and her sister among the other children on the front bench, evidently allowed to come, not creeping in by stealth. She is so quick that I think if she has not mastered the two primers she will soon, and then read the Gospel of St. Mark.

Half an Hour Later:

I have been over now into the room to see how things were going. There was noise enough for fifty children coming from the building, but in a Chinese school the one who reads the loudest is the best scholar, so I was not surprised to find that all the din came from two ambitious scholars, while the others were doing a little writing. There were five there, but among them "Little Rat." You know it is not a real school yet—only a class in reading, writing and crocheting. There are ten in it, and I presume the others will come when they have "eaten their rice." They eat their rice any time from 11 A.M. on—and it is now about twelve. My forewoman is teaching these. I am having some little desks made for them. Miss Liu asked for them, and I told her she should have them when I got some more money, but, on the whole, I think I cannot wait for that, so I have sent the order to the catechist. I had forty-two women and girls at my meeting yesterday, besides babies and toddlers, and glad I am when these last stop running about and go to sleep!

NOTE.—Bishop Roots writes with regard to this industrial work at Ichang:

"The main purpose of this industrial work, which Miss Huntington has inaugurated and maintained with much success, is to bring the women within hearing of the Gospel. Incidentally, it teaches them habits of skilful industry and cleanliness, which contribute not a little to their general awakening and uplifting. Miss Huntington's demand for absolutely first-class work places additional care on her shoulders, but the point lace and crochet work which they do now is certainly beautiful, and when it becomes better known, this part of the work for women in Ichang should pay all running expenses. The school is accommodated in a new building, near the gate of the compound, for which Miss Huntington herself secured the funds. It is no doubt largely responsible for the greatly increased attendance of women, not only at the week-day meetings, held now in this new building, but also at the Sunday services in the church, which is in the Chinese city about a mile from the compound."

THE GIRLS' DAY-SCHOOL

All things come of Thee, O Lord, And of Thine own have we given Thee.

Offerings are asked to sustain missions in twenty-six missionary districts in the United States, Africa, China and Japan; also work in the Haitien Church and in Mexico*; in thirty-nine dioceses, including missions to the Indians and to the Colored People; to pay the salaries of twenty-five bishops, and stipends to 1,673 missionary workers, and to support schools, hospitals and orphanages.

With all remittances the name of the Diocese and Parish should be given. Remittances, when practicable, should be by Check or Draft, and should always be made payable to the order of George C. Thomas, Treasurer, and sent to him, Church Missions House, 281 Fourth Avenue, New York.

Remittances in Bank Notes are not safe unless sent in Registered Letters.

* For support of the Clergyman representing this Church.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS.

The Treasurer of the Domestic and Foreign Missionary Society acknowledges the receipt of the following sums from May 1st to June 1st, 1905:

* Lenten and Easter Offering from the Sunday-school Auxiliary.

Note.—The items in the following pages marked "Sp." are Specials, which do not aid the Board in meeting its appropriations. In the heading for each Diocese the total marked "Ap." is the amount which does aid the Board of Missions in meeting its appropriations. Wherever the abbreviation "Wo. Aux." precedes the amount, the offering is through a branch of the Woman's Auxiliary.

POWER ENOUGH

*And Jesus came and spake unto them, saying, All Power is Given
